Greeting

TO the friends of Washington University, we, the Class of Nineteen Sixteen, offer in this book our efforts to set down in words and pictures an appreciation of our Alma Mater during the year nineteen fourteen-fifteen. The occasions we have written about and the scenes we have photographed have associations attached to them too fine, indeed, for paper and ink to catch; but if this book can recall some of the best of them to those into whose hands it may fall, we shall account our work successful and our purpose achieved.

John Hanger Kennerly

IN every cause some are found, who, while laboring long and well, still find most of those benefited by their efforts ignorant of them. Such a man, we believe, we are introducing to a large part of the students of Washington University in dedicating this issue of the Hatchet to Dr. John Hanger Kennerly, D. D. S., M. D.

Dr. Kennerly has held the offices of Dean of the Washington University School of Dentistry and Professor of Clinical Dentistry for fourteen years, and during that time has endeared himself to all who came within his sphere of influence. Previous to his connection with this University he assisted in organizing the Marion Simms Dental College and held a professorship and the secretaryship of the faculty there until 1899 when he resigned to become a Professor of Prosthetic Dentistry and Secretary of the Dental Faculty at Washington University.

The many professional honors which have come to Dr. Kennerly are sufficient to show the regard in which he is held by his associates, and it is undoubtedly due to his co-operation and encouragement that his students are figuring so largely in university activities of all kinds.

It is with the wish to show a small measure of our appreciation of his untiring efforts to make his students not only better dentists, but also better men, of his never-failing interest and sympathy for them, and of his admirable personality, that the Class of 1916 respectfully dedicates this issue of the Hatchet to Dr. Kennerly.

John H. Kennedy, D.D. M.D.

DEAR ALMA MATER
THY NAME IS SWEET TO ME
OUR HEARTS ARE ALL FOR THEE
FAIR WASHINGTON
THY HALLS SHALL HONORED BE
THROUGHOUT THIS GREAT COUNTRY
FOR ALL ETERNITY
OUR WASHINGTON
THOSE DAYS OF YOUTH WHICH
ALL OF US SPENT WITH THEE
FORM A DEAR HISTORY
FAIR WASHINGTON
COULD THEY RENEWED BE
WE'D LIVE OUR DAYS WITH THEE
FOR ALL ETERNITY

In Memoriam

DR. WASHINGTON E. FISCHEL, who died September 25, 1914, was a professor of medicine in the Washington University Medical School. Dr. Fischel was born in Saint Louis on May 29, 1850, received his early training here and was graduated from the Saint Louis College of Medicine in 1871. He later became a member of the faculty of this school.

From the very organization of the Medical Department of Washington University Dr. Fischel was an active member either of the faculty or of the governing board and his services in building up this department have been inestimable. As a parting gift his widow has given his valuable library to the University.

MRS. ELIZA McMILLAN, who died in Pasadena, California, January 16, 1915, was born June 23, 1845. She was the widow of Mr. William McMillan, who died thirteen years ago. Mrs. McMillan had gone to California for her health and her last illness came suddenly and was of short duration.

McMillan Hall is perhaps the most obvious token of her favor to the University, being one of the most beautiful buildings in Saint Louis. Besides this and other instances of generosity, her will places a contingent sum of over a million dollars at the disposal of the University, of which a sum is to be used to erect in Mary Institute a building as a memorial to Edmund H. Sears; another to assist girls to obtain an education; another to endow a room in Barnes Hospital; and another to erect the "McMillan Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital."

MRS. JAMES FLINTHAM HOW, who died in Saint Louis on March 4, 1915, was the daughter of Col. James B. Eads, one of the most distinguished engineers of his time, and was a native of Saint Louis. Mrs. How will be known to the University through her gift of the Physics Building in memory of James B. Eads, whose name it bears.

The extent of Mrs. How's generosity to churches and charities will never be known, because her numerous donations were never made public.

MRS. BENJAMIN B. GRAHAM, the daughter of Frank P. Blair, died March 8, 1915. Mrs. Graham was born in Saint Louis, August 5, 1852, and spent the greater part of her life here. Since the death of her husband, Benjamin Brown Graham, she has been engaged in charity work and has made many large donations to charitable institutions in Saint Louis.

Mrs. Graham's sincere interest in this University was displayed in, among other gifts, that of the Graham Memorial Chapel, named in honor of her husband, and the new Children's Hospital overlooking Forest Park. Her death has deprived the University of one of its most gracious friends.

The Senior Class

Preface to a History of the Class of 1915

THE aim of this little volume is to present, in as brief a manner as possible, a sympathetic interpretation of the more important events and movements that filled the epoch-making period of 1911-15. To the modern Washington student, especially, it should be a matter of intense interest to reflect that this little body of men and women, at first promising in its size and enthusiasm, but gradually robbed of the one and consequently barely escaping the loss of the other, actually wended its intellectual way across the fine old quadrangles, and trod the well-worn walk to Graham Memorial Chapel. In the following chapters I have attempted to narrate what befell the class during this journey.

The old school of class historians, in dividing their narratives into the Freshman, Sophomore, Junior and Senior years, did not grasp the spirit of the past; they merely wrote the annals of class presidential administrations. I chose to treat my subject from the broader point of view—that of movements and the events which were their outward expression. Accordingly, the reader will find that I have presented my subject under the following heads: first, Desire to beat the Sophomores; second, Desire to beat the Freshmen; third, Desire to give a big Prom; fourth, Desire to obtain Degrees.

We shall see in the first three chapters that the desire to beat the Class of 1914 expressed itself in the choice of a big man for leader—one Moulton

I CHRON. 16—Tremble before him, all the earth.—MUNROE.

Green—and in the consequent overwhelming victory over the Sophomores in a greased pole contest. A few paragraphs are also given to a description of the 1915 Freshman Prom, omitting no important detail such as the pistachio ice-cream. The second tendency, namely, the desire to beat the Freshmen, unfortunately, failed of realization; for by a coup d'etat of the assembled Student Body the war god was brought to his former battle-ground—the platform overhanging a creek; and the barbarians worsted 1915 by means of procedure most foul—sulphur fumes, to be explicit. Military events not being deemed important, I have briefly passed over the fight itself, and have devoted several pages to the after effects of defeat. These were an increase of spirit, manifested in the display of green-and-white hats bearing the class numerals, a clash with the Student Council over the question of whether the Sophomores should or should not be made take off the aforesaid insignia, a small locker-room fire, and the dramatic flight of the class treasurer to Mexico. Other things may have happened, but they do not strictly belong to a work of this kind. For "Love Fest," see Henderson and Smalling; Indoor Picnics, Good Taste in.

The bulk of this volume is given over to the interesting period commonly known as "Coste's Year," or "The Reign of Terror." Prominent events under this head to which I have devoted chapters are: The Coste-Dunker Debate over the Regulation of Prom Rates; the Difficulties in funding the Public Debt and in collecting Tithes; February 24, the Final Triumph. The description of the Prom itself was from an eye-witness, who said, "The Gymnasium was a veritable fairy-land of light and color. Above the dancers thousands of pink roses drooped from a leafy bower, below which were suspended fantastic lamps of varied hues. Myriads of lights, too, skirted the edge of the bower. Grecian columns, supporting clinging rose vines, shut in the floor, while the orchestra was confined in a dainty pavilion at the end of the hall. During the 'Dance of the Seasons,' first rose-petals, then snow-balls were scattered among the gay company, and in a climactic moment a dozen of white doves were released from a central dome to flit about the bower. 1915 set a precedent in Proms which no subsequent class has ever been able to equal." For this important period in the history of this famous class I have borrowed freely from Sparks, The Elements of Prom Committee Chairmanship; Helen Stevens, The Structure of the Rose; and an anonymous work on meteorology, relating Proms to intense cold waves. Miss Helen Smart also has an interesting book entitled Vice-Presidency and What it Means.

The spirit of the Senior Year, which I have designated as the Desire to obtain Degrees, cannot be demonstrated effectively in a work of this modest size. It is an uninteresting period at best. Caps and gowns reduce all Senior Classes to the same level; the individuality disappears with the first Wednesday of the last semester. Hence my rather hasty sketch of the last few months can be included in the final chapter. The Appendix, however, contains some interesting documents relating to certain famous individuals whom the Class of 1915 is proud to claim as members. I commend to the student's attention especially the short biographies of Milford and Potthoff, quarter-back and left-half-back, respectively, on what was known as the football team, football being at that time the greatest game of the age.

In order that topics not fully treated in this rather brief work may be open to the ambitious student of this period, I append the following incomplete, but authentic, bibliography:

Sparks: The Character of Men Who Attend Class Meetings.
Martin: The Contemplative Life at College.
Turk: Political Spirit among the Engineers.
Tieman, Shryock and Rodgers: Class Enthusiasm.
E. Tucker: The Taxation of Women. Etc., etc.

Consult also the columns of Student Life for detailed accounts of parties and meetings.

The Class of 1916

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY, March 29, 1915.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HATCHET.

DEAR SIR: Because this class has always prided itself on the originality that has marked it since its first visit to the Campus, now in its third year, 1916 has decided not to submit a history to the Year Book. It is realized that the custom of describing the antics and prowess of each class in the Hatchet is one of long standing, even one that has become monotonous through constant repetition. So many times in the past three years has our fame been spread abroad, and so hard are we striving to break away from all time-honored rules, that we were forced to the decision above mentioned.

We will leave to our readers the responsibility of investigating our buoyant arrival on the Campus, and the ways in which we won the admiration of the upper classes. We will not mention the pennies we rolled or the bicycles milked by some of our enterprising athletes. Nor do we consider it necessary to describe the three Freshmen parties or the brilliant Prom. It might even seem boastful to give a true review of the Numeral Battle which first gave us a place in the Sun, and our opponents one in the Creek. Had we desired to summarize the success of 1916 in athletics, an account could have been given of the football victory and of the hard fight for the Drosten cup.

Another reason may be offered for not contributing an article to this book of ours which will be a sufficient endorsement, namely, the space allowed is not sufficient. Pages could be devoted to the year of the class 1913-1914, beginning with the tortures of molasses dances and twenty-hour prayers on the goal posts inflicted on the newcomers. Then the class football game, in which we were again victorious, the successful defense of the flag in the annual Bird Nest romp, and the Drosten series would fill another volume. Again, there were parties and dances.

Assuming now that we had accepted your invitation, we would now have to cover our great third year. It would be our task to describe the many experiences as upper classmen, how readily we answered such mediæval queries as "How much does it cost to ride in a jitney?" with such stunning replies as "Ask Dr. Nickell," how also we had a "dancing-forbidden" party for the benefit of the Engineers. It is all too recent to speak of the remarkable talent shown in the Junior Minstrel Show, and of the splendor of our Junior Prom.

Still, if you insist on an exhibit of some sort in the Hatchet, we might tell how our girls won the Hockey championship, or give a list of classmates who have become engaged.

Sincerely yours,

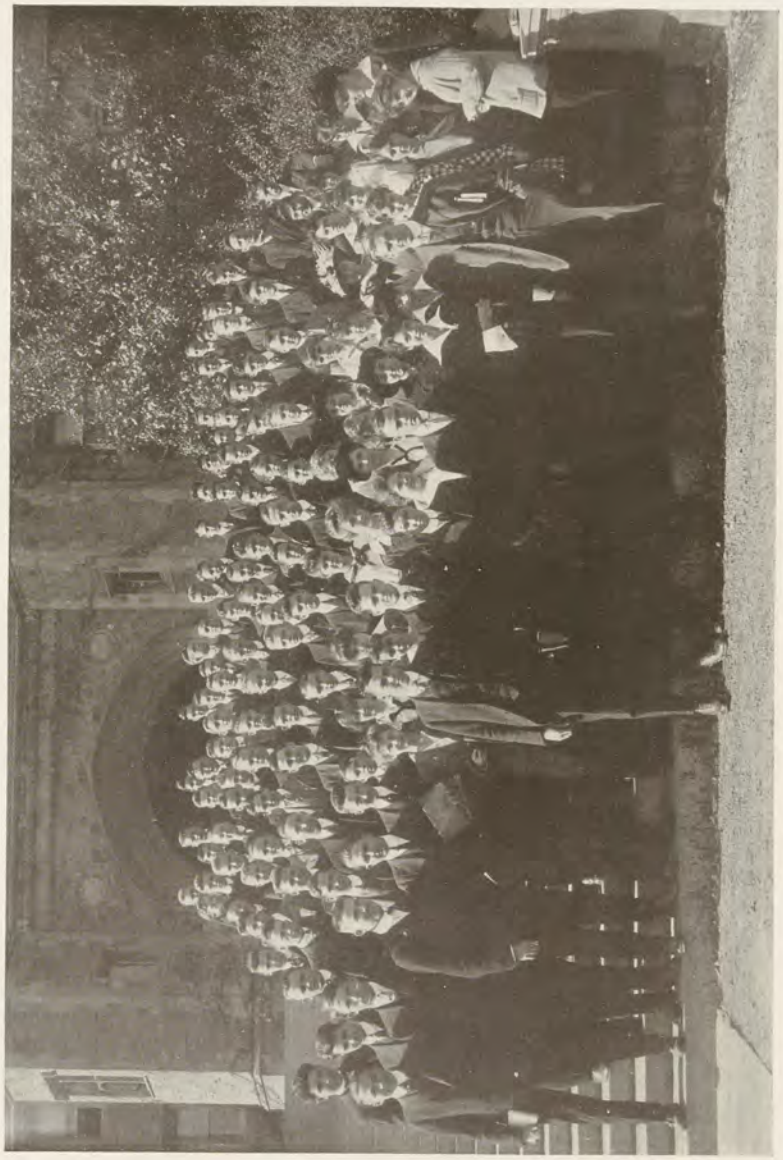

CLASS OF 1916,

G. S. M.

The Sophomore Class

All the world's a stage
And all the men and women merely players:
They have their exits and their entrances;
And one man in his time plays many parts,
His acts being seven ages.

Job 36—Who is a teacher like unto him?—Dr. Swift.

WHAT worthy Shakespeare said of the world may also fit the stage of college days, with one exception, perhaps, that of the seventh age, "the second childishness and mere oblivion." This fate we hope we may be spared. Therefore, we have reduced to six the periods of college life. 'Tis true they may be slightly overlapped to come within the circling four short years.

Look back with us now for a moment and recall, if you can, those infant days of our Freshman year, when first we tiptoed timorously to the Dean and asked what we might be permitted to study. We were verdant indeed those first few weeks early in October, when we attended our first lectures and decided that the professors surely could not realize our ability, or they would not waste time with all those admonitions. Yes, those were our infant days; but they were short, and crowding close upon them came the schoolboy stage, marked by class elections, football games, and a little hazing. We of the gray caps and cherry buttons gathered together during that first term and talked "fight," "strategy" and "victory" all in whispers lest some crouching Sophomore should hear and divulge our plans. But, sad to say, it was useless; we were still in the schoolboy stage of college life. The best laid plans "o' mice an' men gang aft agley;" and so it was with us when we bowed to the superior strength of the Sophomores on that memorable night of the Class Fight. Those who saw the fight saw only boys struggling against men, and that was all. But during that night and early morning a change had been wrought. Had there been another fight, it would not have been boy against man, but man to man. At the end of the track season, for the first time in the history of our class, we carried off all the honors.

After this came the Love Fest, and that strain of the lover—which in everyday life is classed as the third stage, but which in college commands a place from the date of the first informal Freshman party down through the Prom, bobbing up serenely every Chapel hour, reappeared in full force. Our entire first year was spent in battle between the two sides of our dual nature, the schoolboy, or girl, as the case may be, and the lover, sometimes the one victorious over the other, but more often the other victorious over the one.

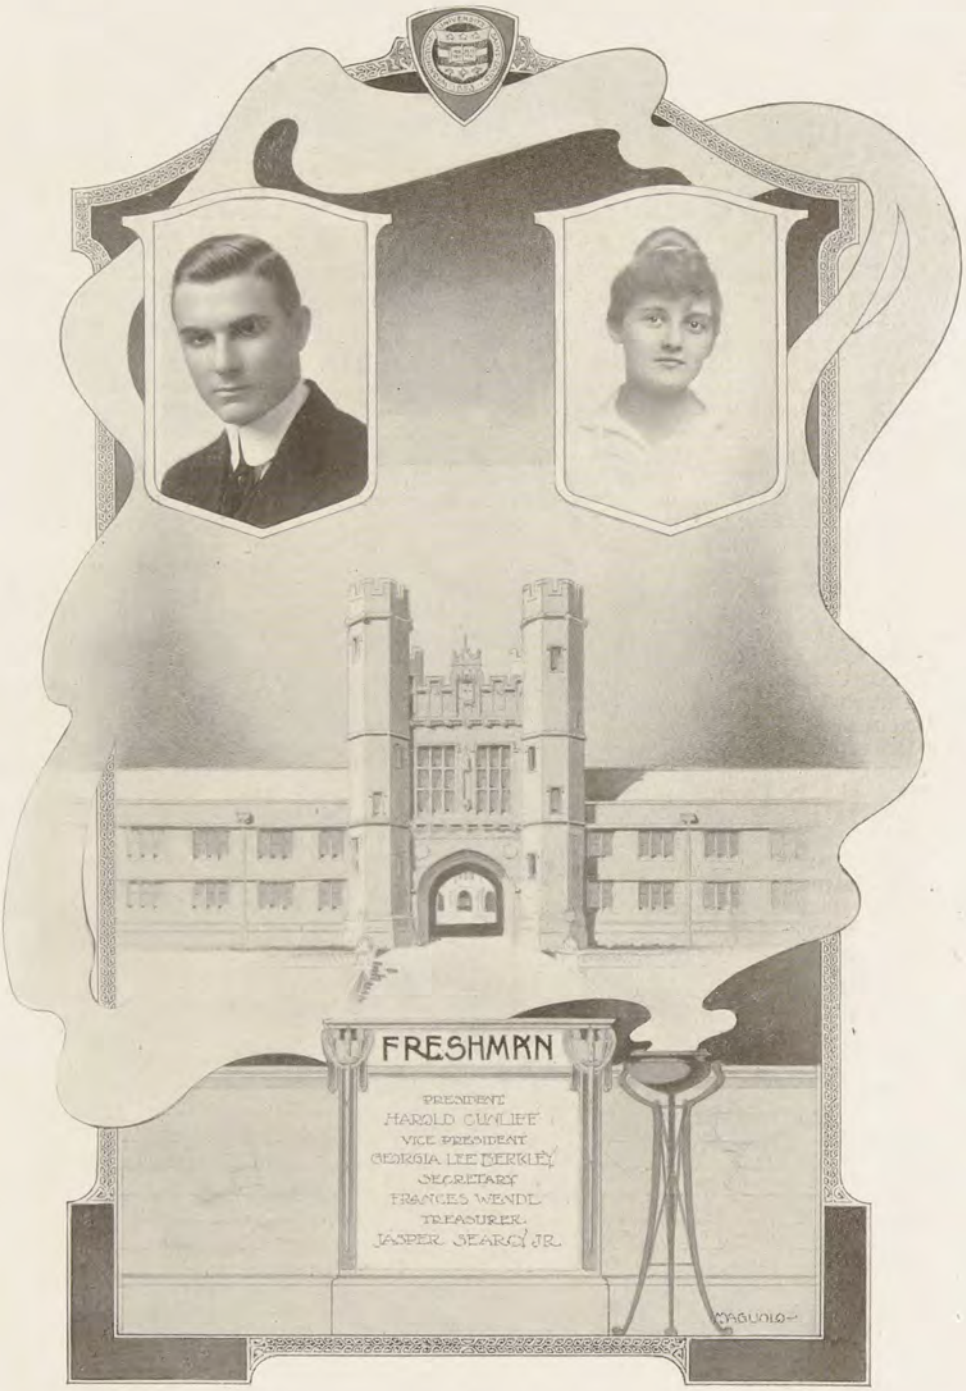

When we returned this fall, we entered the soldier stage. We found it our duty to keep subdued those disturbers of dignity, the Freshmen. Success has greeted us on all sides. We have learned through the hard knocks of our schoolboy stage that it is not brute force, but strategy, that counts, and so by our superior intellect we won the Class Fight. We have become leaders on the gridiron; five of our men played on the Varsity team. No longer feeling the scornful laugh of the other classes, we dared to give a children's party in the Gym after a big supper at McMillan Hall, which was attended by almost every member of our class. From one victory to another we have marched, even conquering in the examinations. That is the spirit of 1917.

D. B. and J. P.

The Freshman Class

THE CLASS of 1918 assembled at Washington University for the first time on September 24, 1914. They were believers in signs and all held the doctrine "Safety First" in high esteem, so they all invested in little gray caps and, in spite of the usual difficulty of small sizes, did their best to appear graceful in them.

On the following Monday the class elections were held. The Sophomores did their best to relieve the tedium of this affair by attempting to kidnap the presidential nominees, relying as usual upon superior numbers, and taking to their heels as soon as they found themselves matched. Perhaps they can console themselves if this and other efforts failed of the desired effect.

Heb. 13—Obey them that have the rule over you and submit yourselves.—The Frosh.

By the fourteenth of October the class had begun to appreciate itself so much that it decided on a little party to become better acquainted with itself. The experiment was a grand success, and nothing could satisfy the delighted members but another party two weeks later. The male portion of the class drew lots for the ladies who were to confer upon them the honor of their company for these occasions. Some of these worthies evinced a wonderful degree of acumen in judging girls by the looks of their names, and it is to be feared that some of them drew lots of lots. But let their conscience judge and punish them.

Another memorable event was the Freshman Prom, held in Gymnasium on the fourteenth of December. All who were present, and the upper classmen not the least among the number, were loud in their praise of the entertainment afforded them, the additional advantage of informal dress belonging to the Freshmen alone.

The Class Fight this year was a strange trial of worth, and with good reason it is denied that its outcome was a moral defeat for the Freshmen. Foreseeing this and thinking of the expense, the Class of 1918 started a movement (which has since become universal) to abolish the fight. It failed then, but the class easily repudiated the charge of cowardice, for by sunrise on the twenty-third, when the fight was to occur, they had stormed and wrecked the Sophomore defenses and captured all of the defenders. But some few of them had remained in hiding during the night and had erected a platform so far away from the other that the attacking party did not reach it in time to erect a scaffold and make a real assault upon it. Besides a decoy platform had been erected near the one previously wrecked, and the discovery that it was a fake was not made until it became light enough to see that there was no flag in it. That is how the fight was lost, but it is plain that with half a chance the Class of 1918 would have served the third platform as it had the first, and more easily besides.

On the other hand, the class acknowledges itself defeated in football. But the spring athletic contests are at hand, and the class does not propose to acknowledge any more defeats, if it can help it.

I Cor. 9—Know ye not that they that run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize.—Hatchet Beauty Contest.

Chronicles of the Wisdomites

Chapter 15

1. So it came to pass that Curtis, King of the Land of Wisdom, called his children yet again to him for another year.

2. And in great multitudes came they, from all the cities of the land, yea, even from Highland and Perryville came they to partake of the knowledge of Curtis and his fellows.

3. Curtis, the King, saw them and was pleased.

4. And among them came certain men from Vanderbilt, and Chicago, and Missouri, who had not dwelt with him before.

5. The King welcomed them and bade them be among his children. And they heeded him and took up their abode.

6. Then spake he to his wise men, Keysor, Wizlizenus and Williams, and they did gather the multitude about them and teach them.

7. Wherefore they became exceeding wise and did burden themselves with great books and spake great words, so that those who were at the Prep School across the Quad were sore amazed.

8. Now, in the second month after the coming of the chosen ones, there was great discussion among the Wisdomites concerning the laws of the land, and Curtis, the King, did call his children into the moot court that justice might be done. He did ask one Philips to sit with him, and Philips heeded him and did sit.

9. Then arose the learned counselors, Barrell, Bauman, Bushman and Dekins, and there was much wisdom spoken, whereat the assembled multitude did beat their hands and make great demonstration.

10. And anon it came to pass when they had partaken of much knowledge, Curtis, the King, called them into his presence to question their wisdom, whereat they were sore afraid for that they must write in books of blue.

11. And when correction was made, lo, those who had been proud were brought low.

12. But two there were among the Wisdomites, Grant and Henske, who were often tempted to lie abed after the sun had risen, and they did yield to temptation and were late to class.

13. Wherefore the King was wroth and did punish them and would question them not. Whereupon they did moan and weep and cover their heads with ashes.

14. And there was great discussion among the Wisdomites as to the justice of the King's command.

Isa. 60—Violence shall no more be heard in thy land.—Abolition of Tree Fight.

15. And when the questioning was done, there was much rejoicing, and all of the people did gather at a tavern, where was much feasting, and some among them waxed jubilant and raised their voices with songs of deliverance.

16. But anon did they continue day by day to assemble before the wise men and hearken to their words of wisdom.

17. And at night to light their torches and study.

18. And after many days the King again questioned them.

19. And after many meetings before the wise men and many questionings, there was held a great festival, and all the Wisdomites did gird their loins in gowns and adorn their heads with caps. Then marched they to the temple, and the high priest pronounced them perfect in learning. And he gave to each of them a scroll, fashioned from the hide of sheep, and they became LL.B.'s.

20. And when all of the seasons had passed and spring had come, the children of Curtis, being pregnant with knowledge and full of Contracts, Property and Equity, did journey to a certain city of Jefferson.

21. And here wrote they many parchments and did share their knowledge with the heathen tribes.

22. For great was their knowledge and they did pass.

23. Then went the Wisdomites forth into the world to fast and to argue with one another.

24. And it came to pass that when the year had ended, Curtis, the King, being covered with glory, did leave his chosen ones and betake himself to foreign lands.

25. And one Goode reigned in his stead.

The Middle Law Class

The Middle Law Class

THE Class of 1916 commenced its second year of Law School life most auspiciously, with no less than twelve new persons from other universities enrolled. By far the most fair, charming and pleasing of these is one Mrs. Blass. Our other fair classmate, Mrs. Brown, was delighted, of course, since she now has what she terms a real companion.

Occasionally some ardent and enterprising young student breaks the monotony with a bit of his original humor and furnishes the class an opportunity for a hearty laugh. "Puff" Martin invariably speaks of "growing cattle," which immediately reveals to all where he comes from.

An honorary High Court of Bullers has been formed this semester. Whenever any member of the class exhibits a tendency toward verbose and bombastic expression, the Court takes official notice that he has applied for admission to the Court en bunc. The applicant alleges that he can shoot the breeze as well as any member of the Court. He is then given a hearing before the "full" Court. The Bancus Regis, after looking up the law in the Irish Reports, hands down the decision. To date the members are Chief Justice Buller McKitric, and Associate Justices Bullers, Sommers, Friedman, Neuhoff, McElhinney, Wood and Freund. "Poge" Lewis applied for membership, but was rejected on account of lack of proficiency, and sent back to gain more experience, with permission to apply for a rehearing.

The Junior Law Year

THE Junior Law Class of 1917 has proved itself to be the leader in legal affairs on the Quad by a series of innovations to and improvements upon the institutions established by preceding classes. The new features introduced are an unmarried Lady Lawyer, fifteen grades above ninety per cent on the first examination, a party to the class by one of the "Femmes Avocates," a class of forty-three members, David Berger, and a class president with the mumps.

The Class of '17 has contributed not a little to the wit and humor of the University. Its members have time and again broken into "Q.-W." and no account of "Dorm Roomers" is complete without them. By unanimous vote, Percy Mier has been elected Chief Joker, his statement, "A murdered man, if he was dying, could tell who killed him" having overshadowed all previous attempts.

In other important student activities the Juniors also excel. They have the only living author of "The World's Worst Joke," six architect's assistants, the most energetic snow-baller in Washington University, the "Lady Impersonator," a private Freshman comedian, the Second Assistant Football Coach, and the Sophomore Larceny Squad of Clayton fame. Besides, the "Moot Court Record" was admirable material for paper balls. As a highly scientific exhibition, the triple play known as the "Horse-Shoe Plug" from Miller to Hachman to Davis, has often been demonstrated to the delight of the grandstanders.

In all, the year has been a most pleasant one, the joyous routine being broken by only two disagreeable episodes. The Seniors were responsible for the first, as they posted false examination grades. Fielder, who was credited with ninety-five, would hardly speak to the other members of the class, thus causing some constraint. He was forgiven, however, when the true grades were produced and his mark of fifty-one was revealed. The other blow was a terrible one. The appearance of a "No Admittance" sign on the door of the Architects' drafting-room destroyed, at one fell swoop, the Lawyers' only place of between-the-classes amusement and, it is rumored, drove sixteen men to hard study.

But the banquet soon followed to dispel the gloom. Short, snappy, well-directed speeches left every Junior highly satisfied with his first legal experiences and determined to work for another Big Year.

And departing, leave behind us,
Footprints on the sands of time."

THOUGH in our saner moments we may realize that our comings and goings are merely current events to others, they are real-honest-to-goodness footprints to us, and some there are deserving of more durable material than the said sand. 'Tis a wonderful product, this Class of 1915, now about to don its sheepskin and cure this orbit of its ills. It is composed not alone of the "Old Guard," whose well-placed industry and marvelous luck class them as "the survival of the fittest," but of much youth, brilliance and enthusiasm gathered from elsewhere, old "Mizzoo" contributing the Tigers' share. Conspicuous among them stands Jimmy James, our fair-haired, light-hearted Jimmy, whose sky would be quite cloudless could he but recover his pin from the last fair damsel and decide on the most becoming suit in which to woo her successor. There is Muench, the married, who toots his own horn (at the Delmar); Judy, authority on and inventor of baths; "Billy" Williamson, whose discovery of the fact that the pancreatic ducts have ample space for fifty erythrocytes to march abreast is known, or will be known, to every medic. Other Tiger whelps compelling mention are "Q" Roberts, "Brad" Bradford, and "Per Se" Colby. But proud though we be of them, there are others whose re-echoing footprints demand attention. For instance, our Daddy Cramb, who would even spend many moments in consideration of a thousand dollars or his near-bald attractiveness. It has been suggested, Daddy, that you take the thousand—it's a safer bet. And again, our greatest acquisition, "Obnoxious" Toomey, poet, artist, autobiographer, and almost priest, whose "versions" are the admiration and despair of the O. P. D. With him we think of Walker, "The Gentleman from Arkansas," because they are so different.

Of those whose thundering footprints have echoed longer in our ears are "Wienie" Wennerman and "Rabbi" Rossen, the Siamese twins of industry and adiposity, good in all things, but ever to be remembered as the incentive to the invention and perfection of the Oxyphone, an instrument we owe directly to "Casey" Jones and designed to separate the "making" from the conversation. It is jealously guarded from our instructors, as "Casey" consented to withhold it until his fellows of 1915 were safe under cover of the sheepskin. Another is our boasted anaesthetist, "Pop" Foulon. Pop is an anaesthetist by virtue of his somnolent habitus, his psychanalytic mind, and much-talked-of "drag," that even "Kewpie" Langsdorf could not break.

We also boast "Metchinkoff" Vinyard, who so successfully researched antinea circinata, "Slim" Strode, now making a study of matrimony and the etiological factors in dislocation of the eyebrow, and his able assistant, "Brownie," and still others, but lack of space and a kind heart intervenes for them.

Coming back to earth and the real things of life, mention is surely due the magnificent structures now occupied by the Medical School. As was said of them in "Science," "they mark an advance beyond the 'Stone Age' of universities," and although we have had but a taste in this year, we are glad to have had that. Proud as we are of our new buildings, we consider them as no more than worthy of the splendid men under whom our medical senses are being developed, and in memory every man of us will often backtrack his footprints to their source in these wards and clinics.

Junior Medics

Five little Freshmen, as happy as could be;
"Flunk," said the Faculty, and then there were three.
Three little Sophomores, as busy as bees;
Will they ever grow up into three "M. D.'s"?
Two little Juniors came back to the war,
And there they were met by fourteen more.

IN perusing the latest results of the annual census, addition, we find, rather than subtraction, is the latest change in the population of the Class of 1916. When Immigration Inspector Rombauer opened her Ellis Island gates on the morning of September 25, there filed fourteen foreigners. Three "Badgers," two "Jayhawks," seven "Show-mes," one "Tarheel," and one "Mormon" safely passed inspection and were allowed to enter the land of unbounded opportunity and matchless knowledge. Being bright of mind and sharp of mind, these newcomers quickly learned the ways of the land from the two natives, and without exception received their naturalization papers after satisfying Judge Murphy in regard to their knowledge of intercannalicular myxomata and senile parenchymatous degeneration.

Surgery, medicine and obstetrics have all been enriched by the studies and researches of this august assembly of wit and wisdom. Among the most notable contributions might be mentioned a monograph by L. A. Anderson, entitled "Studies in the Abnormal Pupilary Reflexes of the Glass Eye." "Prophet" Woolsey frequently "came from behind the bushes" to impart a few choice passages from his little book on worms; "Our Anatomist," Schmidt, tried in vain to establish the importance of the omphalmomesenteric circulation; while "Matty," he who looks the wisest when he knows the least, early instructed Dr. Sachs concerning the habitat and habits of the Oxyuris Vermicularis.

You have read in the two previous years about the two "natives" who were mentioned above. One of them now has a "Missus," as have two others of our illustrious class. This gives us a satisfactory matrimonial club, as quite befits a class in the Medical School.

Sixteen Juniors, so far and yet so near;
How many will there be when we start next year?

The Sophomore Medical Class

Medic Class of 1917

I. School opened up this semester with all in good cheer,
For they knew it was the "Soph," not Freshman year.
And all returned save one of our great class,
But two replaced him, "guaranteed to last."

II. If you walk into our new "path-lab" some day
You'll see Jinks Abrams just drawing away.
And marching down aisle, with fist doubled up,
You'll note Harry Brookes, with his "77" stuff.

III. Schumacher you might skip, because he "hain't" so loud,
But those jokes of Wilhelm's always draw the crowd.
At times Kirby inquires, "Willie, is that truly so?"
And from the corner Watt's laughter will flow.

IV. "Now cut it out, you little bum!" is Ranson's password,
But on him lights McNally so that it can be heard.
"There's an autopsy posted," is Wallace's stand;
"Nix on that stuff," and he's silenced by Meyer's broad hand.

V. "All we Germans stick together," comes from Mueller's lips,
And up starts O. B. Elliot, who fights till he slips.
During the battle, in which both rooms partake,
Footsteps are heard, and at once peace is at stake.

VI. At this great rough-house two Wisconsin students stare,
For Staley and O'Hara remain spectators throughout the flare.
But alas, in the corner, looking for his blue hat,
Goes W. K. Brown, with sideburns at that.

VII. But considering this great bunch all in all,
Although they do raise Cain with an occasional sprawl,
They complain not of study, nor ins nor outs,
In short, one must acknowledge they're a great bunch of scouts.

Freshman Class History

IT was one fine morning in September, and, had one been watching, he might have seen an occasional passenger swing from a passing car, and cast a questioning look on the group of buildings bearing the inscription—"Washington University Medical School."

After inquiries here and there, he was finally ushered into the presence of the "Powers that Be," where, after answering a few questions and signing a card or two, he was told that was all and asked to make himself at home. Meanwhile, everyone showed him the greatest courtesy, and to say that this caused surprise, to those in particular from Universities where neither the opinions nor the feelings of a Freshman are respected, is putting it mildly indeed.

Not many days later the remarkable nature of this class began to show itself by its unusual progress in the fundamentals of medicine. So rapid, in fact, has been its advance that there is no hesitancy in predicting that its future history will be marked by a brilliancy of thought and achievement unrivaled by any other group of workers in the science.

Let us mention, for example, Ball, "Tony" Day, and Hans Anderson, whose recent discussions before the Freshman-Sophomore Medical Society have caused such universal comment. There can be no longer any doubt that these are but Pasteurs and Ehrlichs in embryo, whose authority in future years no man shall dare to question. But perhaps the most interesting and decidedly the most useful member is to be found in "Puny" McKee—the original living skeleton, who offers as never before the opportunity of studying the skeleton in the living specimen. Oh, yes, of course, he's Irish—still, they let him live.

Yet, its boast is not to be confined to such as this, for it is noted, too, for its handsome men. Who can dispute the claims of "Gwendolyn" Hagin and "Luke" Leuking to being the most handsome men in the department? Some "fussers," too. Then those little moustaches occasionally worn by Hyatt and "Cutie" Mitchell are just too cute for words.

Much more could be said of the Class of '18, although space does not permit, but it hopes that in the years to come its work will be an example and an inspiration to those who follow after. —E. H. T.

The Senior Dental Class

IT WAS on September twenty-ninth, 1912, that we entered the Washington University School of Dentistry as Freshmen. "Alone in the world" was our chief feeling, and except for the glad hands of the Dean and the supply men, "Pat" and "Bill," our view was not changed much. As time went on, however, and we began to gather a small idea of how much we did not know, we began to branch out into several specialties. A few specialized in anatomy (at about Seventh and Walnut Streets), a few found time for collecting, a very few took up dentistry, and the rest made nightly pilgrimages to Dreamland. Among our other stunts during this year was the humbling of the Juniors at baseball to the tune of 27 to 9, and other games in similar fashion.

In our Junior year we decided to teach the Freshmen the respect due to upperclassmen, and to this end we arranged a code of thirteen commandments, which were to govern the "Red Necks." The size of the lower class made us hesitate to enforce it; but one day we did take it up, and a scouring of the pavement and a general distribution of black eyes was the result. Above all, the wrath of the Dean descended upon our heads. He made up a simple little code of his very own, and found very little trouble in enforcing it. It was, "Settle down or Get out." Thus, while we instituted hazing, there is little danger of its being continued.

But frivolities aside, we studied hard and all passed into the Senior year. As Seniors we are much more dignified. We all have figured out the State Board questions, we all have fair prospects of getting our work out, and all have passed on Dr. Bartlett's case. We would like to point out how each of us has chosen a special line in which he excels and what they are, but in the fear that we would not do ourselves justice, we must forbear; and so, with the modest remark that those who have lost an opportunity to become acquainted with us have certainly missed something good, we will bid our farewell to Washington, and close.

The Dental Class of 1916

Juniors

JOYOUS and high-spirited, as a result of a pleasant vacation, the members of the Junior Class assembled at the college building on Monday, September 28, to renew their efforts to fulfill satisfactorily the requirements necessary for the ensuing year.

They extended to each other the usual "opening day" greetings, the cordiality of which one must experience to appreciate and understand. It was gratifying to learn that, except one, all the members of the previous year had been able to return, while three were gained. It was evident from their dignified appearance and the haughty manner in which they sized up the "Red Necks" that they had profited from the previous year's training.

With renewed energy they began the work of the Junior year with a determination to make it in every way a success.

Dental Class of 1917

Freshman Dents

WE, the Class of '17, gathered together from mountain, plain, woods and sagebrush and assembled at the Court of King John for instruction in the use of hammer and tongs, do hereby proclaim our valor and prowess. A mighty class are we, and, though four of our number have departed from our midst (probably back to the milk pail and furrow ere this), we still can muster two score and one.

We have two "fatties," two "slim Jims," and the rest—well, they vary considerably in the great middle class. In fact, we are here both great and small, fat and lean, slim and tall.

But let us glance down the roll and see who is present. There are Maxwell, Westfall and Forbes, fresh from the wielding of the rod and imparting precept to the young and erring youth of the land; Thumser, the man whose eyebrow has slipped down from its normal place of abode; Edele, who can locate one more bone in the human anatomy than Cunningham himself; Howell, the human string bean, "nuf sed;" "Rough-house" Adams, who can start more rough-houses and look more innocent than any man in seven states (and he is not out of his territory either). Here is our friend Barney (Barnage). He can boast of being on the carpet oftener and for less cause than any man in the class. Take off your hats, boys, to Kriege, the wizard of vocal expression. He can and does use all the adjectives found in Webster's dictionary, and a great many which are not. Here comes big "Hip" Siever, who has a standing challenge to meet all comers two at a time with one hand tied behind his back and a pillow tied on the other one. Coats has already found it necessary to take unto himself a partner. There is "Sleepy Sam" Wilmesherr, whose work is "good enough" for any practical purpose; Fleming, the youth with the blond "pomp." We present to you Katz, who has discovered that Harvey was wrong in the blood circulation of, at least, the gastro-intestinal tract. Cone—oh! he rooms with "Fat" Blount, that's all. We must not overlook Martin. He is a master in chemistry. If you don't believe it, ask him. Caldwell, a name which immediately causes you to see big things—when looking into a microscope, he can see anything from a balloon to a camel and not bat an eye.

But why go farther? When one glances down the list and sees the illustrious names of Anthony, Bedell, Caffee, Carson, Faber, Gallager, Henderson, Hohmann, Jacobsmeyer, Metzger, Miller, Moore, Pendleton, Ratliff, Renfrow, Rode, Russel, Taylor, "Heinie" Volmer, White, Weigreffe and Yates yet to come, words fail and the quill ceases its motion. Justice will be done to them only in the pages of history yet unwritten.

—G. G. F.

Art Students Bal Masque

By Philip Conrath

ONE of the largest and most beautiful affairs given by any organization of the University was the Bal Masque given by the Art Students' Association. It has been the custom of the Art students to give an annual entertainment, the proceeds of which have gone toward the scholarship fund, whose maintenance is one of their activities. Heretofore these entertainments have been minor, though beautiful, affairs, and have not been intended to attract outside patronage. This year, however, their scope was broader. They extended an invitation to the general public.

Their boldness brought the desired results. The Arabian Nights Ball was a success in every detail. The beautiful color and rhythm lent an atmosphere of refined abandon and called forth that feeling of comradeship which makes an affair successful.

But why describe it? Everyone remembers the spell of enchantment thrown over them when at ten o'clock the Muezzin, Mr. Paul M. Winter, invoked the genie to create the beautiful picture. What a masterpiece the genie, Imagination, created. First, he showed us the Grand Vizier, Mr. M. H. Lipman. He hobbled up to the dais and struck the gong which called the Sultan and his court together. The Sultan and Sultana, with their attendants numbering two hundred people, led the grand march, after which the general dancing followed. At intervals of thirty minutes a stroke of the gong enchanted everyone anew with some beautiful story, dance or pantomime. The program was as follows:

General Statement

WHEN, in 1885, Mr. Henry Shaw proposed to the Corporation that the latter establish a Department of Botany, and very generously offered to endow it and to affiliate it with the Missouri Botanical Garden, the present Henry School of Botany was founded. Later, at the death of Mr. Shaw, the field of instruction was broadened through the additional endowment fund provided for in his will. Today the school enjoys a staff of instructors and material facilities for research that enable its curriculum to include practically all phases of botanical science.

The 1914 Football Team

The 1914 Football Season

IN many ways the 1914 football season proved to be a decided success. Especially was this true in what it promises for the future. The attendance records showed that there were, on the average, forty men out for practice every night, a condition never before seen at Washington. This large turnout kept Coaches Edmunds, Thomas and Krause busy and enabled every man to get the best of training. Financially the season was a big success. Rolla drew a big crowd, as did St. Louis U., and at Mizzou we netted a very neat sum. About fifty players and the band were taken to Mizzou, and it was the best showing that Washington ever made at Columbia.

Practice was started September 15, with the result that the team was in condition for the game with Southern Illinois Normal on Francis Field, three days after the opening of school. The lopsided score (66-0) showed the excellent condition of the men, and they followed this up by handing Shurtleff the short end of a 62-7 score on the following Saturday.

October 10 was an open date, and on the 17th the team met a small cyclone in the shape of Rolla. Although we made the best showing against the Miners of any team except Missouri, the game resulted in the serious injury of four important men, Lewis, Gray, Berry and Meyer. The consequence was that it was a much weakened team that faced Drury at Springfield the following Saturday. Our boys were plainly "off their feed," and Drury was fortunate in getting away with a 28-26 victory.

Drake was tied 7-7, and then, before a record football crowd, Washington settled an old score by defeating St. Louis U. 6-0. It was a hard-earned victory, since both Milford and Potthoff received broken ankles in the first quarter. Missouri was our last opponent. We faced them on Rollins Field with a badly crippled team, and in the absence of Capt. Potthoff and quarter back Milford, the Tigers rolled up 26 points. "Poge" Lewis booted a goal from placement late in the fourth quarter, thus making the first score ever made by Washington on Rollins Field.

Capt. "Boise" Potthoff—half back—proved himself a worthy leader. His wonderful open-field running often brought the spectators to their feet in amazement, and his cool-headedness was a steadying influence in the tight places of a game.

"Lin" Milford at quarter back ran the team with a variety of speedy and puzzling plays. "Lin" knows football from A to Z, and he and "Boise" have played together ever since they were big enough to hold a ball.

PROV. 26—When he speaketh fair, believe him not.—BILL GEPPERT.

George Hetlage, at half back, played the usual cool, steady game that has always characterized him. Although weighing no more than 150 pounds, "Het" often surprised some of his larger opponents with his hard tackling. "Het," together with "Lin" and "Boise," finished his football career with the final whistle at Mizzou after three years of active service on the varsity. These three men have made an enviable record in athletics at W.-U.

"Poge" Lewis, full back and captain for 1915, was one of last year's "W" men, and his kicking, forward passes and hard line bucking made him the terror of the game. Many of the "fake" plays were built around "Poge," but when his knee was injured in the Rolla game, he was forced to drop out for a while. He went into the Drake game for a few moments, and played the entire Missouri game in the line.

Ralph Gray, at tackle, plugged a hole in the line and kept it plugged. It wasn't often they fooled Ralph. He seemed to be "hoodooed," however, and was in continual hard luck with injuries.

"Bill" Berry, at end, was another valuable man, and, being fast, a quick thinker, and a sure tackler, he upset many a play before it had started.

Webb Kammerer, playing his second year with the varsity, took his place in the line or back field with equal success and played hard. He was a kind of a general utility man, fitting well in any position.

"Manny" Werner was another "handy" man, playing any position the coach happened to pick out, and he invariably "busted things up." Both he and Webb will return next year.

"Pop" Ransom, at tackle, was what is usually termed "a tower of strength," and when "Pop" got hold of a man, it was "down" for sure. Often he would down a man with one hand. "Pop" graduates this year and his loss will be keenly felt.

"Baldy" Coleman played anywhere the coach happened to put him, and "Baldy" always got away with it. We will also lose him this year.

"Chub" Graham, at tackle, was always "there," and although not a spectacular player, the "Senator" always gave a good account of himself. He will be there when the whistle blows next year.

There were six men who won their letters this year for the first time, being Wetzel, Wright, McRoberts, Martin, Busiek and Meyer. They will all be there next year.

"Dutch" Wetzel, the unhurtable Dutchman, as some of the newspapers called him, held down the center position and never took out time except in the Mizzou game. He makes a fine starting point for next year's lineup.

"Bobby" Wright was a new man in the game. He showed up well at guard and proved very valuable.

McRoberts, at guard, tackle and end, fit in either place easily and always used his 170 pounds to the best advantage.

"Puff" Martin, the (K-9), was understudy to Lewis, and took his place at full back when "Poge" hurt his knee.

Busiek made a star end, and was usually found in the midst of every play. He is only a Sophomore, and has a good chance to develop into a wonderful player.

"Jerry" Meyer, at end, also gave a good account of himself at all times. Nobody fooled Jerry. Like Berry and Busiek, he always saw a play before it was started, and was into it when the ball was stopped.

This completes the roll, and with twelve of these men coming back next year, it seems as though next season will be even better than this, as the coach has several more big men in line.

Much credit must be given the coaches for the showing of the team, and there is no doubt that everybody in the University is glad that "Big Bill Edmunds" decided to stay with us, and that he has such able assistants as "Bob" Thomas and "Dog" Krause and such a first-class trainer as Dr. Lund.

Never before has the alumni shown as much interest as they did last fall. They were on the sidelines during each practice and lent valuable assistance to the coaches. "Art" Hilmer and Emmett Gruner erected a scoreboard, which added much to the spectators' interest in the games. The season ended with a spread at Dr. Lund's home.

The 1915 Basketball Season

A WINNING team is almost invariably a good one; however, it does not follow that a losing team is not a good one. This year, Washington was good though loser, and made her opponents realize that their victories were hard won. Coach Bob Thomas turned out one of the gamest fives in the Conference, one that always seemed to be playing its best.

The season opened in January with a practice game against McKendree, which the Varsity won easily. The following Friday and Saturday the team took two contests from Southern Illinois Normal. These easier games gave the men the necessary practice for the heavier ones to come. In the first basketball match with that school in several years, the Varsity defeated St. Louis University on January 30. During the first half, St. Louis took the lead, but Washington fought the Billikens off their feet when the men started games with the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan were lost. The Washington squad uncovered several brilliant bursts of speed, but were obviously outclassed by the clever Kansas team. Fast team work and accurate shooting by their opponents, coupled with the Varsity's unfamiliarity with the floor, deprived Washington of the two Conference matches with the Tigers at Columbia. On February 13, the squad handily won from St. Louis University, thus taking the series. Although having no chance of winning in the games played here with the speedy and accurate Kansas quintet, Washington put up a splendid fight and showed real aggressiveness. The roughest and most interesting game of the schedule was the first of the contests with Missouri on the home floor. Until the closing whistle the outcome was in doubt, but the locals finally succeeded in winning one Conference game. The closing affair of the season, lost to Missouri the next night, was one of the slowest, as practically every play was broken up by the referee's whistle.

With the last Missouri game, Captain Modisette finished his three years of intercollegiate basketball. "Modi" was one of the fastest floor men and surest shots in the Conference. No one was better than he at free throwing. And also in nearly every game he uncovered a few of those long, sensational shots. "Modi" was always the chief point maker on the Varsity and consequently will be greatly missed next year.

Bill Berry was probably the most consistent player on the five and could always be depended upon to put forth his best efforts. A better guard than Berry would be hard to find. He has more basketball sense than any other of the Varsity men, and this, together with his ability to pass the ball and to keep his man covered, made him a mainstay of the team. He well deserves the Captaincy which is his next year.

Although this was Milford's first year at Varsity basketball, he was one of the most reliable men on the team. His football sense and his head work served him well in breaking up plays, and in covering his forward. "Lin" seemed to be as much at home with a basketball as with a football.

Miller, forward, improved more, as the season advanced, than any of the others. Many times, even when playing Kansas, he evaded his guard. This speed, together with his accuracy in shooting baskets, made him a valuable forward.

Busiek did his best work in following the ball, and was fighting every minute. With the knowledge of the game this season, he should develop to be one of the good men in the Conference next year.

This was also Hetlage's first year at basketball, and as he is a Senior, will be his last. "Het" always played his man closely, and it was seldom that a forward got an opportunity to uncover himself. Football experience was valuable in making him a steady, consistent guard, and a hard player.

Sprick has all the attributes of a perfect basketball player, especially in regard to shooting. He has another year to play, and will undoubtedly be one of the regulars.

Martin has all the aggressiveness required, and then some, and, as in football, always came through when needed.

Phillips was new at Varsity playing, but made good his first year out. His best work was in the first St. Louis University struggle, in which he played forward. His shooting at that time aided much in winning the game for Washington.

Coleman was a fast, scrappy player, but as his studies prevented his coming out for practice, he had little chance to show his ability.

Captain Modisette, Milford, Hetlage, Phillips and Coleman will be graduated this year.

William Berry, captain-elect, together with Miller, Busiek, Sprick and Martin, will be back next season.

TRACK

The 1914 Track History

WASHINGTON'S 1914 track history is a story of one event, the Missouri Valley Conference meet, which for the second consecutive year was held at Francis Field on May 30. The wonderful gathering of world-famous track men, ideal weather conditions, and the splendid records achieved, combined to make the meet the most notable track event seen here since St. Louis entertained world's champions at the exposition in 1904.

Invitations had been sent to practically every school of prominence in the West, and most of them responded by entering large squads. Chicago and Missouri entered twenty-four men each, while Northwestern and Kansas sent twenty-one representatives. Among the entrants were such men as Cowman of Rolla, Murray and Bonnett of Leland Stanford, Knight and Barancik of Chicago, and Thatcher of Missouri, a field which foreshadowed the breaking of many records.

As the meet occurred simultaneously with the big Eastern meet at Cambridge, a favorable opportunity was given for a comparison with what is generally recognized as the country's track and field classic. The comparison was very flattering to the Western athletes, though in fairness it must be said that the Eastern men labored against the disadvantage of a heavy track.

The honors of the day were almost monopolized by non-conference teams, Chicago winning the meet with a total of 44 2-3 points, while Leland Stanford was second with 34 points. The coast team claimed the brightest individual stars in Bonnett, Murray, Wilson and Bedeau, who between them earned 20 points. Chicago, however, had by far the better balanced team, and managed to gain a place in every event except the 440 yard dash and the shot put. It was this balance of the Maroon squad which proved to be the winning factor, for while both teams won first places in four events, Chicago got seven second places to two for Stanford. Aside from the two leaders, Missouri was the only team to score more than one first place, Thatcher winning the discus and Moss the two-mile run. Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, Northwestern and Rolla were the other teams represented in the five-point column. Washington had entrees in several events, but failed to gain a place in any of them.

The remarkable feature of the meet was the ruthless shattering of former Conference records. Of the fifteen events which comprised the meet, in no less than seven were new marks established. The first to fall was the 440 yard dash time of 50 1-5, when Cowman of Rolla, running a beautiful race, made the distance in 48 2-5. Next, Bonnett of Stanford ran the half-mile in 1:56, breaking the record by one second, following which his teammate, Murray, clipped one-half second from Kirksey's record in the 220 yard hurdles, but unfortunately he knocked over several hurdles, so the record was not officially accepted. Barancik and Boyd of Chicago then improved the records in the 220 yard dash and the broad jump respectively, while Thatcher of Missouri set a new mark of 126 feet 10 inches, in winning the discus throw. The Chicago relay team completed the list by winning the half-mile event in 29 3-5 as compared to 30 4-5, the former record. The winners of the other events were: 100 yard dash—Knight, Chicago; mile run—Wilson, Stanford; 120 hurdles—Hazen, Kansas; 2 mile run—Moss, Missouri; pole vault—Reavis, Nebraska; high jump—James, Northwestern; shot put—Bedeau, Stanford; 1 mile relay—Colorado.

The 1914 Baseball Season

AFTER a nap of three years baseball at Washington was again brought to life under the direction of Coach Edmunds last year. The schedule laid out for our first year was neither a heavy nor an expensive one. The only Conference games on it were two with the Kansas Aggies.

The first call for candidates brought forth a squad of about forty, which after two weeks dwindled down to twenty, from which the team was finally chosen. It soon became apparent that our weakest point was to be in the pitching department, with only Hoerr, Anderson, Hewitt and Winfree to choose from. Hoerr pitched in but one game before he became ineligible; and this shifted all the burden to Anderson and Hewitt, both of whom did good work. Anderson's best game was the third with St. Louis University, in which he allowed only one puny single to all of the twenty-three blue and white sluggers who faced him. Hewitt pitched in splendid form in the Mc-

Kendree game and did great work on the trip.

In the fielding and hitting departments our nine proved to be very strong, and behind the bat "Poge" Lewis was not equaled by any of the catchers we met throughout the season. "Poge" is not only big league material in the receiving line, but is also a good pitcher and a heavy hitter. For a time the first base position was an open one. After Henske broke his ankle the Coach tried out Modisette, Maenner and Coste for the place, the last named finally becoming our regular first-sacker. This position he held down with much credit. At second it soon became evident that "Walky" Ross would be a fixture, as he had the ability to cover a great deal of ground. Captain Milford took shortstop without any opposition. "Lin" played short with the same ability he always showed, whether in football, basketball or baseball. At third base a contest took place between Hardaway and Van Raalte, each having been at one time an all-interscholastic third baseman. The decision was rendered by Hardaway's illness, which forced him to withdraw. "Van" never let the swiftest grounder get past him, and knew how to line them over to first. The outfield was a very uncertain proposition, Coste, DeVorkin, Meinholtz, French, Winfree, Hewitt and Maenner all having a chance. The final choice found Maenner at left, Meinholtz at center and Hewitt and Anderson alternating at right. "Ted" was a strong, steady player and a timely hitter. The fans expected much from "Dutch" Meinholtz when he came to the bat, and he never disappointed them.

Our early games were easily won, one with McKendree and three out of four with St. Louis University. The St. Louis U. games were bitterly fought, but at no time did their men loom up as really dangerous.

The trip to Central Wesleyan College, St. Mary's College in Kansas, and to Kansas Agricultural College at Manhattan, Kansas, was finished with a record of one victory and three defeats, Central Wesleyan being our only victim. Our pitchers were not equal to the task of taking to the mound on alternate days and to the meadow in between.

The real disappointment of the season was the lack of interest and patronage accorded the team by the student body, particularly in the St. Louis U. games. Better hopes are entertained for next year, but certainly with such a small following as that we had last year Varsity Baseball is far from being established at Washington.

Tennis of 1914

THE year of 1914 was one of incomparable victory for Washington in the department of tennis. The annual Missouri Valley tennis matches were held this year in the last week of May on the "Triple A" courts of St. Louis. The Washington representatives in the meet were Charles Gallenkamp and Roland Hoerr. It was due to the keen, fast playing of these men that Washington easily defeated all the colleges represented in the tournament.

In the first round of the single matches, Roland Hoerr easily eliminated Meyer of Nebraska, 6-2, 6-2, while Gallenkamp won from Sussman of Nebraska, 6-1, 6-3. Smith, star of Kansas, defeated Cave of Ames in the feature match of the day, 6-1, 6-3. Hoerr won his way into the final match by defeating Smith after a hard fight, four sets being necessary to decide—6-2, 7-5, 5-7, 6-3. Teachenor of Kansas put Gallenkamp out in easy fashion, the final score being 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. Hoerr finally won the championship Saturday morning by defeating Teachenor three sets out of four—5-7, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1. In this final match Hoerr played a wonderful game; he started off by losing the first set, but came back in excellent fashion and won the last three sets.

In the doubles, Hoerr and Gallenkamp won after defeating Loomis and Wood of Missouri in three sets—6-1, 6-2, 10-8. The last set was very exciting throughout. Hoerr and Gallenkamp worked together exceedingly well, although they had very little time to practice together before the meet on account of examinations. Gallenkamp is a very steady player, and he made an excellent partner for Hoerr, who far outclasses his opponents with his fast, brilliant "shots."

Gallenkamp graduated in June, but Hoerr will be with us for the 1915 season. With another good teammate, there is no doubt but that Hoerr will bring home another Missouri Valley Championship next May.

Women's Athletics

THE chief activities in the department of Women's Athletics lie along the lines of Basketball, Hockey, Floorwork, Aesthetic Dancing, Indoor Baseball and Fencing. Hockey was introduced in the fall of 1914, and took the girls by storm. Over ninety girls signed up, and there was more than enough material from which to choose a team for each class. Unfortunately the class games could not be played before cold weather set in and had to be postponed till spring, when the results were not so satisfactory, owing to the short time given for practice. The Junior team was awarded the championship, although defeated by the Seniors, who were disqualified in the actual contests by having the three Hockey coaches playing on their team. During the winter months, the chief interest centers around the Basketball contest for the class championship. The winning class is awarded the honor of having its numerals placed on the Association Basketball Cup, and the members of all the teams are awarded their class numerals.

The prospects are rather bright this spring for both Indoor Baseball and Tennis, as Hockey seems to have proven an opening wedge, so to speak, for interest in the other athletics for women. The Indoor Baseball games are played by class teams as in the case of Hockey and Basketball, but the Tennis championship is an individual affair.

Another innovation this spring is the "Swimming Club." Arrangements were made whereby the central Y. W. C. A. pool was rented one afternoon each week from 4 to 6 for the University girls, and season tickets were sold to all those who were interested. The Plan is for Water-Polo, and the idea has been enthusiastically received.

The compulsory gymnasium work for the Freshman and Sophomore classes ends early in May, and the athletic season closes with a banquet for all members of the Women's Athletic Association.

Lam. 5—But thou hast utterly rejected me.—Thyrsus Tryouts.

Thyrsus Review

WITH the presentation of Zangwill's "The Melting Pot" at the Victoria Theater on May 14, Thyrsus showed what excellence a college dramatic club may attain. By all the spectators it was declared one of the best "annuals" ever given, and by many, the most finished performance ever presented by Thyrsus. The whole cast were not only admirably adapted to their parts, but brought out all the possibilities which even the most meager parts offered.

The acting of Miss Stevens, as Vera Revendal, was marked by a naturalness that is rarely found in an amateur performance. Added to this, the rich tones of Miss Stevens' voice made the part of Vera most pleasing, and an effective contrast to the tragic temperament of the hero. Mr. Fattman, playing the difficult role of David, made the most of the many dramatic situations in the play. Especially in the third act did Mr. Fattman show his ability to sustain the tenseness of the situation, and to convey its tragic significance. In fact, if any criticism could be offered against the acting of Mr. Fattman, it would be an inclination to overstress heavy situations. Miss Bryars, with her characteristic vivacious acting, made a delightful French baroness, a sharp contrast to Mr. Powell in the role of Baron Revendal. Mr. Powell, with his deep voice and deliberate movements, not only acted but looked the part of the Russian aristocrat.

Miss Roehrich, as Kathleen O'Reilly, made much of a part which offered no great possibilities, and displayed in small compass a finished ability; while Miss Watson, in contrast to the spirited Kathleen, showed much talent in acting the part of the old Frau Quixano. Mr. Preston, as Quincy Davenport, displayed admirable stage presence and did very clever acting. Mr. Berry won the sympathy of the audience as the earnest, gruff Herr Poppelmeister, and Mr. Ramsay ably played the somewhat monotonous role of Mendel.

A melodrama, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was also given in May, and did not fail to do justice to the reputation acquired by Thyrsus in this direction. With an all-star cast, it is hardly necessary to say that all the melodramatic situations were made the most of. The Seniors who participated in the play were Eugene Smith, as Uncle Tom; Mildred de Courcey, as Little Eva; Herold West, as Topsy; Rita Monteath, as Eliza; Hortense Bowles, as Marie; and Frank Berryhill, as Simon Legree.

The first monthly play this year was "The Honeymoon," skillfully staged and presented, in which several new members displayed their histrionic ability. Miss Wuertenbaecher made a charming heroine as Flora Loyd, and Mr. Sharron displayed a pleasing stage presence in the role of the hero, Cedric. Miss Zacher acted consistently the part of the overbearing Mrs. Hudson; while Mr. Hill proved a most affectionate and uxorious husband. Mr. Gepphert won the applause of the audience in acting the part of the youthful Charles. Mr. Sommers, as usual, showed great skill in the interpretation of the part of the Bishop. Although the parts of Gaston and Guthbert were very slight, Mr. Suck rendered them amusing by taking advantage of all the opportunities for action.

PROV. 11—He that goeth as a tale-bearer revealeth secrets.—MISS PHOEBE.

Besides the regular monthly plays given by the active members of Thyrsus, a play was given this year by the Alumni. Pinero's "Dandy Dick" was presented in January, and proved such a success that it was presented another time by request. The cast represented every annual but the last, and included:

Glee and Mandolin Clubs Season of 1914

AFTER traveling more than one thousand miles through Missouri and eastern Kansas, the Glee and Mandolin Clubs closed a successful season with the St. Louis performance at the Victoria Theater on the twenty-second of January. Thirty students made the trip, the group being comprised of twenty-one men from the Glee Club and nine from the Mandolin Club, and accompanied by the director of the Glee Club, Mr. J. Glenn Lee.

The party left St. Louis on December 29, in their private car, the Istoria, playing in Springfield that evening. After the show several small parties were given in honor of the performers. The next stop was made at Carthage, where the Clubs were under the management of the local Elks. A very encouraging audience greeted the performers, and the men were entertained with a dance after the show. During the evening, Harold Conrad and Jay Hill, the latter in costume as La Belle Cabaretiere, exhibited some of the newest dances. A matinee was played in Pittsburg, Kansas, on December 31, and the evening performance was given at Parsons, Kansas.

On New Year's Day two performances were given in Fort Scott. The young ladies of the town entertained for the Clubs at the Y. M. C. A., and on the same day the men visited several places of historic interest about the town. On Saturday, January 2, the Clubs reached Sedalia, Missouri. Here the students paraded the streets in lockstep, carrying a large banner with the words, "Washington University," which some of the natives read for "Washington's Anniversary." After the performance at the Sedalia Theater a banquet was tendered the men at the Hotel Plutoria.

On January 3, the Clubs returned to St. Louis, and began preparations for the St. Louis concert. On January 9 they were entertained at the City Club, and on the twenty-second the concert was given at the Victoria Theater.

EDWARD KENDALL HARRISON.

The Concert of 1915

Quality was the dominant characteristic of the concert given by the combined Musical Clubs at the Victoria Theater, January 13. The Clubs had recently returned from their annual trip and were in a splendid condition for their final performance, as they had had the benefit of public performances during the tour and still were not "stale" on their music.

According to the custom of the concert, the first scene was in costume. This year a Venetian street scene was shown, in which all the members were clad in white, with gaudy sashes and ties. The first selection was a delightful Italian air, "O Sole Mio," sung by Mr. Payne, accompanied by Mr. Suppiger on the violin and Mr. Taussig on the guitar. The Mandolin Club rendered with much effect Nevin's "Venetian Love Song," showing a good interpretation. Hayden's "Serenade" was very well rendered by the Glee Club, in which a skillful shading of voices and tones was exhibited. A duet, "La Cinquatine," by Mr. Suppiger on the violin and Mr. Taussig on the guitar, was probably the most effective selection rendered. A pleasing Neapolitan atmosphere was maintained throughout the entire scene.

The female impersonator, Mr. J. Hill, scored a great success in the next act by his dances with Mr. Conrad. The couple displayed many of the latest steps in the Maxixe and Fox Trot.

Both Clubs appeared in evening dress in the third scene. The Mandolin Club played the "Poet and Peasant" overture with a freshness that many thought it had lost a generation ago.

Nevin's "Sunrise" by the Glee Club and a solo, "Because of You," by Mr. Payne, showed the real merits of the Glee Club. Mr. Langreck proved himself to be a master of the mandolin by his rendition of "The Witches' Dance" and of Wagner's "Song of the Evening Star." The climax of the entertainment was reached in the final number, "Medley of the South."

Throughout the entire concert both clubs showed excellent ability that had been well trained. The performance heightened the standard of the concert to such an extent that it will be difficult for the combined clubs to surpass it in the future.

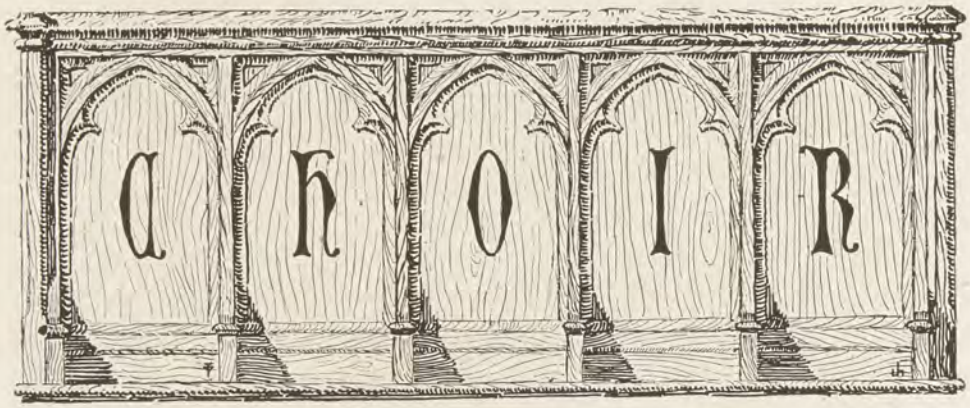

J. A. PRESTON.

These seven fraternities are organized as the Pan-Hellenic Association for the purpose of supervising such affairs as concern their common interests. The association gives annually a smoker to which members of the fraternities are invited. It also conducts the Pan-Hellenic Baseball Series for the Drosten Trophy. A report of the last series will be found on the next page.

| Sigma Nu | 0 | 1 | .000 |

The Pan-Hellenic Association each spring arranges for a series of inter-fraternity baseball games, the winner of which has its name engraved on the Pan-Hellenic Trophy and has possession of the trophy for one year or until another team wins the championship. Owing to the fact that the championship of Division 1 was not decided, a championship game between Divisions 1 and 2 was not played last year. The Association decided that the three highest teams, Theta Xi, Phi Delta Theta and Beta Theta Pi, were to have their fraternity letters engraved on the trophy and each to have possession of it one-third of the present academic year.

This odd expression is used to describe those men who belong to a college fraternity that is national in character, but has no chapter at the college where the person so named is attending. The number of these men at Washington is small. They are:

Edward L. Baker, who was an active member of Delta Tau Delta at Missouri State University during the year 1910-11.

Edward A. Blondin, who was an active member of Phi Gamma Delta at Knox College during the year 1912-13.

The Pralma Dance

AN innovation which may become a new institution in the customs of the University was introduced on April 13, 1914, when Pralma gave a dance to the school in Francis Gymnasium. Members of the Pralma said that each year Pralma is greatly hampered in preparing for the Surkuss by the need of a certain amount of ready money to cover the initial expenses. This year the money was to be raised by giving a dance. (It may be remarked here that this means of raising funds is becoming decidedly popular at Washington.) The programs, besides bearing the emblem of Pralma, set forth the attractions of the Surkuss in a small advertisement, and announced the date as May 6.

The Pi Phi Tea

THE Missouri Beta Chapter of Pi Beta Phi gave its annual reception to the University at the home of Miss Lora Otto, on Saturday afternoon, April 18. Those in the receiving line were: Miss Barbara Senseney, Mrs. Otto, Miss Shirley Seifert and Mrs. White. The decorations in the reception room were leaves and artificial dogwood flowers, and here the Freshmen of the chapter presided over the punch, while in the dining room the other members entertained the numerous guests with ice cream, cakes and mints, all tinted to match the decorations of the room, which were pink, even to the dainty shades on the candlesticks.

The McMillan Vaudeville

LAST year the custom of giving a vaudeville performance in order to cover the expenses of the May Day was inaugurated by the Washington girls, and the production given this year on Saturday, April 24, was a great success. It consisted of five acts, presented respectively by Pi Beta Phi, the Y. W. C. A., Kleo (now Delta Gamma), McMillan Hall and Kappa Alpha Theta. Two performances were given and at each one the Thyrsus Theater was filled.

Pi Beta Phi first staged a combination of folksongs and folkdances from Germany, Holland, Ireland and Italy, called "Immigrants at Ellis Isle." A fairy farce, with the title, "Charms," was the contribution of the Y. W. C. A. Kleo followed with the "Mirror," a satire, setting forth the activities of well-known campus organizations during the year. McMillan Hall's effort was entitled "Lariat Sal." It was a Wild West drama in approved moving-picture fashion, replete with shudders and thrills, and having a courageous hero, a beauteous heroine, melo-chromatic Indians and cowboys in up-to-the-minute style. Kappa Alpha Theta presented a double-header, the first part, "He and She," being a demonstration of love-making, at once eloquent and laconic; the second, "Him and Her," a piece in which well-known exponents of the gentle art of fussing found their exploits set to music.

JOB 41—Wilt thou play with him as with a bird?—SALLY BENEDICT.

JOB 33—Hold thy peace and I will teach thee wisdom.—VIRGINIA RHODES

Kleo Becomes a Chapter of Delta Gamma

OVER since 1905 Kleo has existed at Washington as a local sorority, reaching a membership, up to last year, of about a hundred girls. In February of last year a petition was sent to Delta Gamma, requesting a charter for Kleo as a chapter of the national sorority. On this account the two editresses of the Ancora, the official organ of Delta Gamma, visited Washington on February 14, and were introduced to the girls of the school at a tea given at McMillan Hall. On April 23 the charter was granted, and the chapter was installed on April 27.

The Chemical Engineers' Trip

AT the early hour of seven, on the morning of Friday, April 24, 1914, Mr. Black, of the Chemistry Department, and nine Sophomore Chemical Engineers gathered at Tower Grove Station and took the train for Herculaneum, Mo. Here, by courtesy of the St. Joe Lead Company, they were shown through the huge lead smelter. At noon they ate lunch in the chemist's office, and when they could move again took in the plant more carefully, took pictures, played catch and climbed hills. That night they had supper and slept at a hotel in Flat River, after invading a moving picture show. In the morning half of them were out for a walk when the other half of the boys awoke, and all kinds of personal apparel had disappeared. But they found these in time to walk for several hours in a mine, inspect a large ore concentrator and a power plant. They finished just in time to take the train home, and arrived in St. Louis on Saturday evening. The engineers will ever preserve a pleasant memory of their interesting and instructive trip, and a hearty appreciation of the kindness of Mr. Black and his friends.

Dandelion Day

DANDELION Day, which was inaugurated by the Class of 1916, was held for the second time on April 28, 1914, during what is generally chapel hour. This celebration is conducted by the Freshmen, who pull up the dandelions from the first quadrangle by the roots, and then gather them in baskets and cast them as ballots at the archway for some candidate for the honor of being the "Queen of the Freshman Class." This year the men of the Class of 1917 were the participants, and Miss Angela Burdeau, of the School of Architecture, was elected after a close contest. President opened the occasion with a speech in which he explained that this year each plant was to count for one vote instead of ten as before. The results were: Miss Burdeau, 4,423; Miss Spurlock, 3,950; Miss Benedict, 2,529; Miss Vogt, 1,860; Miss Donan, 1,095; Miss Alofs, 1,035. Upon the announcement of the result Mr. Berryhill crowned the queen with a garland of flowers amid the cheers of the bystanders.

Perhaps we may be permitted to remark that the havoc of Dandelion Day did not thin the ranks of the dandelions very much, but that "chemical extinguishers" had to be resorted to later.

The Greek Recital

ON April 30, the Department of Greek of the University gave a recital in the ancient Greek, with music and scenery of ancient Greek style. The performance, in which eighteen students participated, was held in McMillan Hall, and was designed to typify Greek lyric poetry and music of a period twenty-four hundred years ago. The Greek music, almost entirely of the flute, was used throughout the program, under the direction of Iver Nelson, '15, who also composed the music for the dramatic selection from Bacchylides. Dr. Usher pieced together the Greek music that was used and made it practicable. Some material was used in the recital that has been recovered in Egypt during the last fifteen years.

The program included "The Death of Daphnis," from the first idyl of Theocritus, by Miss Helen Donnelly, '14; an oration from Demosthenes, by Ben Goldstein, '14; several lyrical odes, sung by the entire chorus of eighteen voices; "The Prayer of Chrysis," from Homer, by Harold Keysor, '15; and a dramatic selection from Bacchylides.

A New Architectural Society

"SCARAB" is the name adopted by an honorary secret society in the University of Illinois in 1909. It is composed of upper classmen in architecture, and until lately it has made no chapters in other universities. Two professors and three instructors at Illinois are members of "Scarab."

On the night of May second, the Washington University chapter of "Scarab" was installed by seventeen students from the School of Architecture of the University of Illinois. Seven undergraduates and fifteen alumni were initiated, and immediately after the ritual services a banquet was held in the old chapel. The undergraduates initiated were: M. F. Cann, Neal Davis, Percy Lodge, Theodore Maenner, Joseph Senne, Harry Payne and Percy Ramsay.

The Orchestra Concert

FOR various reasons, this year the performance of the Orchestra Club was given separately from that of the other musical clubs, and took place at Founder's Hall on the evening of May fifth. The program has been applauded by all of those who heard it, and the improvement of the club over its condition of last year is also a matter worthy of commendation. At the time of the performance, the club had a membership of thirty, and was under the direction of Mr. J. C. Walter; so that it is now prepared to take up the study of music for its own sake. Among the musical clubs at Washington this one alone has this for its object.

The program included a march by Lachner, a ballet from Faust, the Overture from "Don Juan" by Mozart, "Un Peu d'Amour" by Silesu, "Germany" from "Aus Aller Herren Laendern" by Moszkowski, and "Songe d'Automne" by Joyce. The audience could not fail to be pleased with the soloist of the evening, Miss Marie Gallenkamp, whose sweet voice and unaffected grace are becoming familiar to frequenters of Washington entertainments. She was accompanied in six delightful songs by Miss Mildred Searcy, of whom it can only be said that she was a perfect complement to Miss Gallenkamp.

PROV. 27—Be thou diligent to know the state of thy flock.—MISS MCCAULLEY.

The McMillan May Day

SPECIAL interest attaches to the May Day celebration of 1914, as a departure, and in the estimation of many, a laudable one, from the nature of similar occasions held previously. The customary dances, although the winding of the May pole was omitted, were combined in an original play of Fairy Land by Misses Erma Perham and Helen Schlesinger in collaboration. The music was composed by Miss Ehlers, and the dances were arranged by Miss Perham, so that from start to finish it was a Washington play.

The title of the playlet is "Fairy Love." It opens with an evening scene, in which some young villagers are preparing for an outdoor celebration on the morrow, which is to be May Day. Robin, a handsome shepherd lad, is present, and after the others have gone away he wanders off into the night. The fairies find him as they come into an open spot in the woods for some gambols of their own, and tease him by pretending to make love to him, until Dewdrop, another fairy, intercedes for him. Dewdrop and Robin soon discover that they are in love with each other; but not much sooner than the other fairies, who straightway call down the wrath of Titania upon Dewdrop and the torments of the elves upon Robin. (The fairies' law forbids love between fairies and mortals.) Dewdrop is about to be turned into a mouse, and nobody knows what might have happened to Robin; when Johnny-Jump-Up comes in with the Brownies, and they, to the general relief, prove that Dewdrop was born a mortal, but was brought up as a fairy. At this Dewdrop and Robin receive the blessings of the fairies, and as morning dawns they set off to meet the villagers, who welcome them enthusiastically.

Miss Monteath and Miss De Courcy, as Robin and Dewdrop, well vindicated their right to the center of attraction, displaying talent in acting as well as dancing. Miss Gallenkamp as leader of the fairies sang and danced in truly fairy fashion. Miss Retter, with her usual skill, and Miss McClevey and Miss Nicholson proved sprightly leaders for the Moonbeams in their beautifully mysterious dance. The Elves, led by Miss Watson, were quaintly fearsome, but Miss Taylor, as Johnny-Jump-Up, and the Brownies, led by Miss Brotherton, "brought down the house" with their charmingly funny dance. Among the most notable of the dances must be mentioned Miss Emma Vogt's graceful first appearance before the Washington audience as leader of the Fireflies, and Miss Wurtenbaecher's solo dance, "Adieu, Dewdrop."

The Univee Surkuss of 1914

IN spite of efforts of the weather to prevent it, the Univee Surkuss was presented to the public with all its usual brilliance on May sixth. The wind storm the night before did but temporary damage, and few of the spectators that evening knew about it.

Arriving on the grounds, we were simultaneously assailed by cries of "Try the Merry-Go-Round!" "Confetti, Two for Five!" "Peanuts!" "Right This Way for Your Ice Cold Soda Water!" but of course we fooled them and walked over to the Lottery. We found it a losing proposition; and our lady friend fared no better when she walked to the next stall and attempted to "Soak" her "Sorority Sister" with baseballs. Then we joined the procession and saw the Architects "Shoot the Bull" in "Huerta-El," a Mexican Melodrama. After this we became involved in the "Engineer's Enigma" and witnessed an engaging representation of the "Business of Getting an Education." On our way to the Glee Club Show the "Campus Cooler" loomed up before us; and then, while we were still under the influence of soda pop, we were induced to vote for the "Queen of the Quad." Afterwards it was discovered that her name was Miss Mildred Fox, and we hoped that she was the one we had voted for, but guessed it was all right. In this round about way we finally got to the Glee Club Show, and, thinking that it was worth waiting for, we walked over and "slode the Slood" and tried the Freshman-power Merry-Go-Round. We did all this without being pinched as usual, and were trying to figure out what had become of the "cops," when we heard cries of distress. Thereupon, with one eye we beheld our "fair one" being dragged off by a swarthy ruffian, and with the other observed something that looked like the granddaddy of all the guns being focussed upon us by another of these personages. The latter worthy conducted us into the presence of General Huerta, who called upon us to ransom our captive princess. Acting upon the thought that she was "dear at any price," we offered thirty cents and were released.

Pralma closed the outdoor entertainment with an outburst of generosity by offering a slack wire performance by Swender, '17. The highly amusing and now world-famous Pageant and Masque of Saint Louis was then held in the Gymnasium. Dancing ended the evening.

The Phi Beta Kappa Installation

AMONG a number of things that have occurred during the last year of which Washington may well be proud, one of the most notable is the installation at this school of a chapter of the great honorary, the Phi Beta Kappa. This society was founded in 1776 at the College of William and Mary in Virginia, and for many years was the only Greek Letter Society in this country. Among its charter members are some of the most famous men of that time. Phi Beta Kappa was originally a secret society, but membership in it has since become honorary, and is commonly awarded to graduating students of colleges who have shown exceptional ability in literature and history. It is noted for the work done by its members in these pursuits, and is now the largest honorary society in America, having chapters in all the important schools in the country.

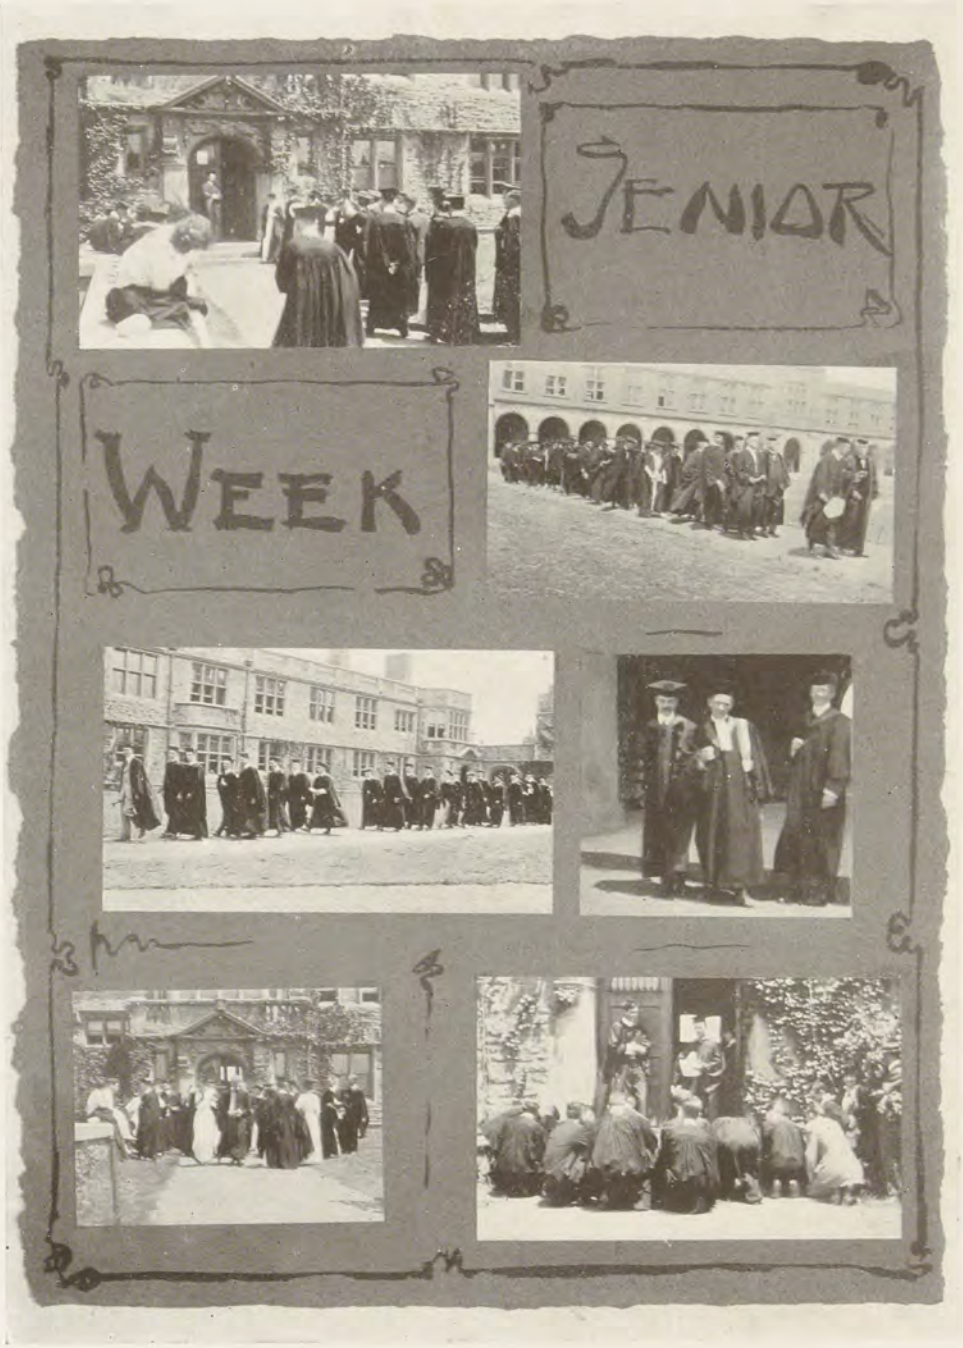

Professor James H. Tufts, of the University of Chicago, president of the Chicago Philosophic Society, was present to deliver the charter of the new chapter at the installation, which occurred at a banquet at the Buckingham Club, May thirteenth. It was originally intended to have Professor E. A. Grosvenor, of Amherst, president of the united chapters of Phi Beta Kappa, present at the installation. Members of the Washington Alumni from the Class of 1862 down to that of 1914 were elected to membership, so that the local chapter will number about one hundred and fifty members, including resident members previously elected to other chapters. Those elected from the graduating class, that of 1914, are Miss Mary Helen Donnelly, Miss Mary Herold West, Fred R. Griffith, William H. Wingfield, Ben F. Goldstein and Charles H. Duncker.

Open House Day

THE third reception given by the Washington University Association to the public of St. Louis was held on Saturday, May twenty-third. The object of this reception was to give the people of the neighboring territory an idea of the sort of work that is being done at Washington. It is estimated that five thousand persons visited during the program, which lasted from three o'clock until six.

Exhibits were held in all the buildings and all the classrooms and laboratories were opened to the public. Light refreshments were served to the crowd by University girls, and the "Pep Patrol" acted as guides to the visitors. In the first quadrangle Noel Poepping and his now famous "Pageant Band" entertained the visitors with a concert from three o'clock to five. At four o'clock the Glee and Mandolin Clubs gave a musical entertainment in the Old Chapel. From five to six o'clock Mr. Charles Galloway, assisted by a chorus of seventy voices from the Apollo and Wednesday Morning Choral Clubs and eminent instrumental artists from the city, gave a musicale in Graham Memorial Chapel. Besides this, the Freshman-Sophomore Field Meet took place on the same afternoon. This was won by the Freshmen (1917).

Senior Week

THE festivities of Senior Week are now but a pleasant memory lingering in the hearts of loyal "fourteeners," already scattered in all directions of the compass. This Class of 1914, because they excelled in every line of work play, had a longer, fuller, happier season of gaiety than any preceding class.

The fun began with a moonlight boat excursion on Thursday, June fourth. Fun? Well, ask the stags. (The girls will tell a somewhat different story.)

Everyone spent Friday trying to recuperate from their severe attack of finalexaminationitis, a disease, by the way, often very prevalent at Washington; and preparing for the strenuous events of the coming week.

The Senior-Faculty baseball game gave the Seniors on Saturday an opportunity to make a final settlement with several members of the teaching corps. "Revenge is sweet" meant more than ever to the Seniors after they had piled up a very top-heavy score against the pedagogues.

And on Sunday, Mercury, with his wingéd feet, soared higher and higher, as the mighty Seniors, wilted and forlorn, swathed in voluminous gowns, marched into chapel for the Baccalaureate sermon. All discomfort was soon forgotten, however, as they listened to the address on "The Opportunities of Youth."

The girls rose bright and early on Monday in order to attend the beautifully appointed luncheon, given by the underclass girls, at the Midland Valley Golf Club. Not the least enjoyable portion of this was the unusual experience of seeing "oursel's as ithers see us."

Combining the Senior Play with the Class Day Exercises was an innovation of 1914. Between the acts of the farce, called "The Senior," the Class History and Prophecy were read.

Anyone visiting the Campus Tuesday morning would have seen a long line of black-robed Pilgrims passing slowly from building to building, offering their last adoration, as students, at each of the sacred shrines. Immediately after this, every Pilgrim followed the example of Chancellor Hall in casting a shovelful of earth on the Class Tree, which had just been planted with appropriate ceremonies. But even Pilgrims get hungry, and you should have seen the feast they devoured beneath the trees of the British Gardens.

That night the class journeyed en masse to the Midland Valley Club for a banquet and dance. Incidentally, a few engagements were announced here.

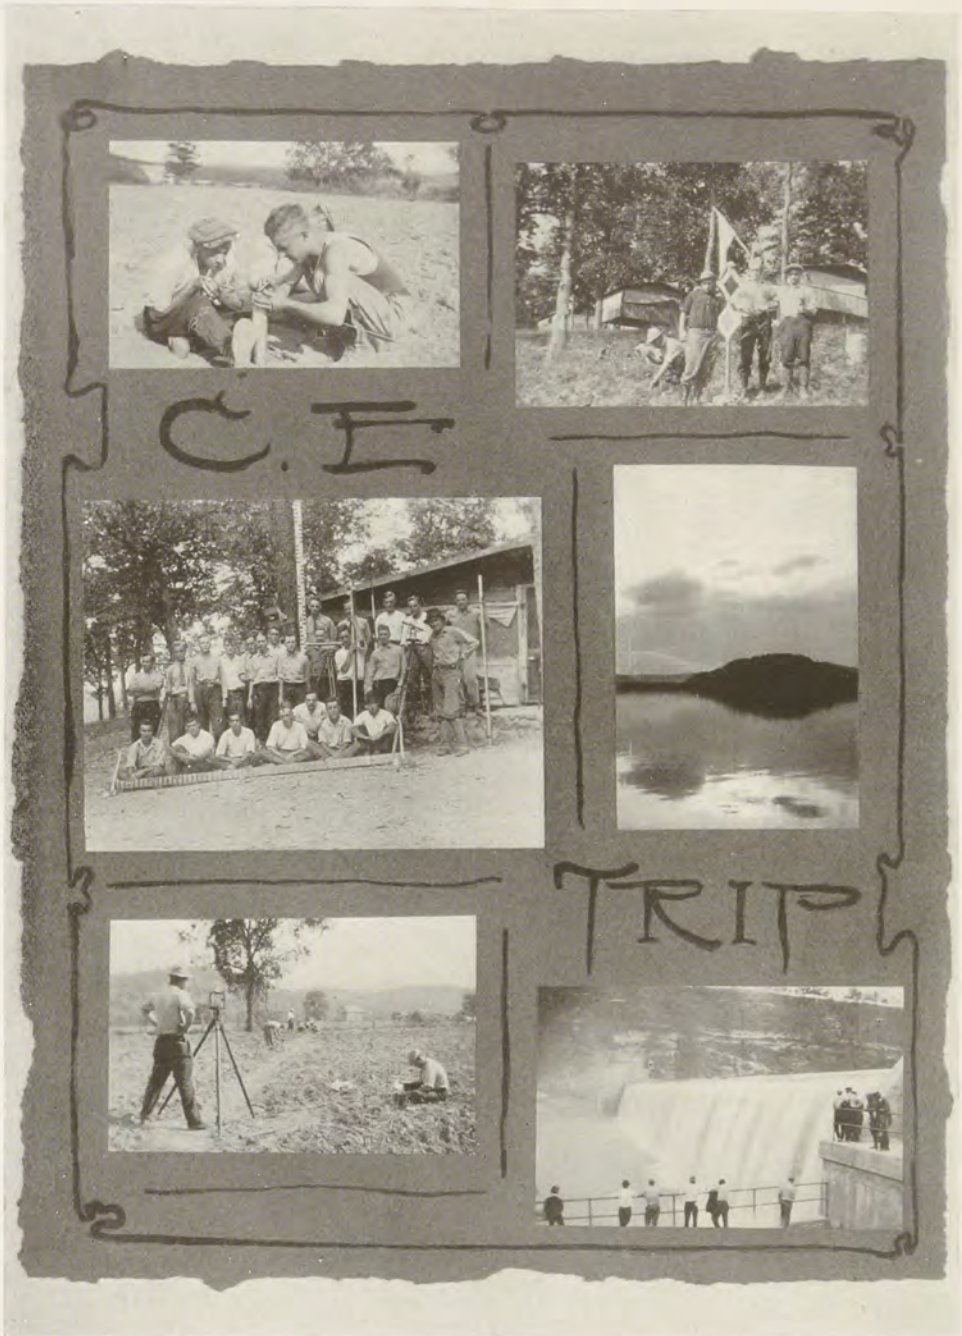

It was a rather tired but still jovial bunch of Seniors who landed in Lebanon the next morning for an all day picnic at Ray Perry's, and who arose on Thursday to find the world smiling on their Commencement Day.

After the Commencement Exercises, at which Dr. Bitting was the chief speaker, the Alumni welcomed the members of the Class of 1914 into their midst with a luncheon at the Art School.

This spot was also the scene of the Senior Prom that night, which marked the climax of a week's festivities. And with the singing of the Alma Mater in the archway at midnight, the curtain fell on the Class of 1914.

The Civil Engineers' Trip

THE Junior and Senior Civil Engineers chose Camp Lookout, Galena, Mo., as the place for the surveying trip of September, 1914. The whole crew, twenty-two men in all, accompanied by Professor Sweetser and Mr. Galt, left St. Louis on August thirty-first. Nobody dared to go to bed before midnight that night, when by mutual consent an armistice was declared, which was broken only by the commotion attendant upon the occasional ice-water baths conferred on the noisy sleepers. The next morning we arrived in Carthage, and after breakfasting and looking the town over, departed for Galena. The camp was situated on a high bluff overlooking the James River, about three miles from Galena. We walked to the camp from Galena, over country which is doubtless pleasant to the eye, but is certainly tiresome to the feet. Besides doing some preliminary work on the first day, the Seniors adjourned to town in a body that evening to attend an ice-cream social. As a consequence of their excesses, they spent half of the night in futile efforts to find their way back.

Eight hours' work in the field and two at night left little time for recreation. What we had consisted principally of swimming in the James and assembling a varied assortment of reptiles, which ultimately found its way into Evans' bed. Now, had we the pen of Kirk Munroe we would describe the thrilling rescue of Kippel by Bill Berry,—but we forbear. May he be rewarded as he deserves. Conrad observed such remarkable phenomena as his shoes being occasionally nailed to the floor, his nightshirt sewed up, and his bed springs moved to the bottom of the hill.

With these words and a brief mention of the Ozark hash and apple sauce which was dispensed to us at regular intervals, we will pass over three arduous weeks to the conclusion of the survey. At this juncture we went to Bronson, boarded a motor boat, and so came to the Powersite Dam on the White River. Then there was a pie social and dance at Bronson that night, and it so happened that we were all back in time to be there. This affair called our attention to the fact that the human stomach will hold a vastly greater bulk of some things than of others. Perhaps we might state in this connection that, in view of the monetary considerations involved, Kippel has decided never to sit on another pie.

The following day some of us "hiked" ten miles through the country made famous by "The Shepherd of the Hills" to the Marvel Cave, where the wonderful underground sights occupied our attention for several hours. The dinner that we were treated to when we came out is one of our most delightful memories of the trip. After it was over we walked three miles more and took the train for home.

September, 1914

THE improvements which were begun on the Campus during the previous summer were carried still further during that of 1914. The system of outdoor lights was extended until now all the walks, drives and approaches about the University are well lighted every evening, and the roads were also improved. A new steam pipe line was laid from the power house to both the men's and the women's dormitories, and tanks were installed so that plenty of hot water could be had whenever it was wanted. The new gateway to the stadium was also completed and ready for use. The very least that can be said of it is that it is a fit and harmonious complement to the other structures among which it takes its place. The installation of the registrar's office, at the expense of the men's Student Room, was another notable feature.

The registration this year showed a considerable increase over that of last year, although among the upper classes many were missed whose presence had been considered essential to some of our student activities. The corporation again laid considerable stress upon the Saturday and other extension courses, special rates being made to attract the attention of teachers from St. Louis, with a proportional effect upon the enrollment in those courses.

The war in Europe deprived us of two of our professors, M. Abella and M. Faure, both of whom joined the French reserves. Others of the faculty who did not return to Washington this year are: Mr. William Rae, Dr. William Kouwenhoven, Dr. Charles F. Meyer, Mr. C. C. Kochenderfer, Mr. Leo McCarthy, Mr. John Fleming and Mr. Irwin Roman. A goodly number of additions were made to the faculty, however, so that these losses are more than compensated. They are, assistant professors: Chauncey S. Boucher, A.B., A.M., American History; R. M. Scoon, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., Greek and Latin; William A. Robinson, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., Political Science; Instructors and Assistants: Donald C. Barton, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., Geology; Howard H. Belts, A.B., Physics; H. P. Bybee, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., Geology (who has since left); Raymond DuHadway, A.B., A.M., Mathematics; Erwin Hartrung, A.B., German; Morris Kirschstein, B.S., A.M., E.E., Electrical Engineering; Mrs. W. R. Mackenzie, A.B., English; and, later in the year, Eugene P. Wightman, A. B., A.M., Ph.D., Chemistry. The following received appointments as teaching fellows: Mr. H. Boettler, Economics; Mr. Royal A. Dickie, Geology; Mr. Fred Griffith, Chemistry and Zoology; Mr. W. J. Hipple, Mr. Edward Mason, Chemistry; and Mr. Frank B. Wann, Botany. Mr. Robert L. Thomas and Mr. Walter G. Krause were appointed assistant athletic directors.

The opening of the New Medical School and the Barnes Hospital is one of the greatest strides taken for a long time toward our common goal, a Greater Washington; too great, however, for a detailed description here.

Keod

THERE is now a women's Senior honorary society at Washington, composed of nine of the Senior girls. It was organized under the name "Keod" during the summer with the advice of Miss McCaulley, and at the opening of the term Acting Chancellor Hall published a letter in "Student Life" formally recognizing the society. The ostensible purpose of Keod is "to work for a larger and better Washington," and it will, no doubt, serve for the guidance of the lower classes among the women as Pralma does among the men. In an institution like Washington University, where the girls are as active as they are in all university affairs, it is right that there should be an honorary society for the women as well as for the men to which ambitious students may aspire as a reward for their labors.

The charter members of Keod are the Misses Helen Stevens, Grace Rodgers, Eleanor Tucker, Marjorie DeGarmo, Ruth Meinholtz, Helen Smart, Gertrude Krausnick, Leona Beckman and Helen Shryock. Their successors will be chosen from the Junior Class at the end of the year.

The pins represent the top of one of the University towers with the letter K. The pledge ribbons were blue.

The Band

THE present year should mark an epoch in the history of student activities of the university by the organization of a student band. Those who followed "That Band" on our long "peerades" in St. Louis and Columbia and listened to it at our games and mass meetings know what a source of encouragement and cheer it has been, and are prepared to join in our hearty tribute to the men who composed it.

It was organized at an enthusiastic meeting on October eighth, and made its first appearance at the Rolla game. Its work improved steadily during the season, and at the last two games its members wore a uniform consisting of rooters' hats, white trousers and black coats, a very effective combination. In the organization and work of the band, the following men have been prominent: Clifford Taussig, '16, business manager; A. B. Raffl, '17, leader; George Nagel, '17, president; and Mr. Edward Mason, one of the student assistants, who has used the experience he acquired with the Band of Drury College to help ours.

The Musical Clubs' Union

AT a joint meeting held on October twenty-first, a consolidation was effected between the Glee and Mandolin Clubs. The chief item of this consolidation was the selection of a "Governing Board" from the membership of the two clubs, to which all matters affecting the two clubs are to be submitted. Three men were chosen from each club, and from these a president, a vice-president, a secretary-treasurer, a business manager and two assistant business managers were chosen. In addition, the president and the business manager of each club is an ex-officio member of the board, making ten in all.

The Flag Rush

AFTER last year's Class Fight it was anticipated that the apparatus used this year would be more complicated than ever, and when the report became current that the Sophomores were building a dam and an island in the creek near the scene of the last two fights, no one was very much surprised. The Freshmen undertook to change the order of things, however, and at about eight o'clock on the evening of December twenty-second they went out in a body and took these formidable defenses by storm. About thirty-five Sophomores were employed about the island at the time, and although they put up a stubborn defense, they were nearly all captured. Before they left, the Freshmen enacted the destruction of Louvain with the Sophomore defenses. Even the Germans would have been satisfied with their work.

Before sunrise on December twenty-third, the Freshmen left the gymnasium and went out along the Clayton Road. They had trouble with their lumber, one huge truck being stalled in the attempt to transport it, and it was taken out in several loads in a smaller truck. They then shouldered their supplies and marched triumphantly upon the island a mile away. But evidently no one had been there since the attack on the previous evening. By this time it was daylight, and some of the spectators had arrived in the territory and had a fire burning. The Freshmen turned their steps toward this and found the crowd gathered about a rather "dinky" wooden platform perched up in a tree on the hill overlooking the creek. In this were about ten of the least dangerous Sophomores, eating sandwiches and taunting the Freshmen. Here the Freshmen deposited their burdens, but did not erect their platform, because there seemed to be something wrong somewhere.

These worthies in the decoy platform made no attempt to conceal the fact that there was no flag in their platform, so the Freshmen set out to hunt the real platform. At eight o'clock they were still unsuccessful, and then President Larkey led the long procession of fighters and spectators eastward about two miles to a place not more than a half mile from the gymnasium. Here the Sophomores had erected a steel platform with their own hands during the prescribed time, strictly according to the rules. It was not as strong as that used the previous year, but the Freshmen had left their paraphernalia of attack behind, and they could only poke at it with some long poles. This, of course, did not dislodge the fifteen picked Sophomores who were in the platform, armed with ropes and ready to defend the flag. At nine o'clock the "situation was unchanged," and the fight was adjudged to the Class of 1917. Some excitement was provided for the bloodthirsty spectators when several Sophomores ran in among the Freshmen and were tied up.

Amendments to the Constitution

AT a joint meeting of the men and women of the university held on November eleventh, a constitution for the entire student body was adopted. This provides for a council composed of the men's council and the women's council together, a president, who is to be the president of the men's council, and a secretary, who is to be the secretary of the women's council. This joint council is now the "Student Council," and it has jurisdiction over all matters that affect both men and women.

At the same meeting measures were adopted to make the men's Honor System apply to the women, and to include representatives from the Medical and Dental Schools in the men's council.

Hockey

A NEW sport has made its appearance at Washington and is being taken up with enthusiasm by the girls. The sport is Hockey, and Hockey teams have been organized for each of the classes. Members of the teams were readily distinguishable from the common herd by their gay arm bands. We are all sorry that the weather proved such a determined foe to the girls' enjoyment.

The Freshman Dance

THE Class of 1918 gave the annual Freshman Dance in Francis Gymnasium on the evening of December fourth. The decorations were in maize and green, and were of smilax and palms, with yellow chrysanthemums in gilt wicker baskets. The entertainment was a creditable one, and a good start for 1918.

St. Fatima's Day

THE ceremonies of St. Fatima's Day were changed considerably from the customary order this year. One aspect of this change was that they did not commence until one o'clock on Wednesday, January twentieth. But there was the usual display of extravagant wearing apparel that has defied analysis, description or diagnosis (whichever applies) ever since St. Fatima was first borne somnolent from her den and rudely wakened to imprecate the thunders of Almighty Allah upon a potentially truculent Faculty.

Borean breezes sported gaily about the quadrangle and whooped joyously through the archway, and it is to be feared that Allah received the prayers of the poor shivering saint but coldly. For this time he deigned to show himself to his subjects, and answered the invocation from the roof of the Old Chapel, where it must have been fairly fresh. Arnold Tuchschmidt's ponderous tones carried the prayer to the upper air. After this, Harry Payne as King chose for his successor Harry Crocker, and Her Holiness, St. Fatima Ramsay, conferred her couch and the front part of her name upon Fred Hammond. "The worm will turn," etc.; "it is the last straw" etc., as we all know, and the time-honored couch broke as it passed from sight into the draughting room.

The Junior Prom

FOR once the ground was clear of snow at the Junior Prom, and a correspondingly large attendance rewarded the efforts of the 1916 Junior Prom Committee. Besides, what last year was termed the "custom" of charging for admission was relegated to the class of experiments.

The Junior Promenade of the Class of 1916 was given in Francis Gymnasium on the evening of February twenty-third. The interior of the building was completely transformed for the occasion into a Japanese garden, walled in with white lattice-work overgrown with flowers and smilax. Overhead, from the bower of smilax and sweet peas that formed the ceiling, swung hundreds of Japanese lanterns and several large Japanese parasols, each containing one or several electric lamps. At the west end of the Gymnasium stood a graceful and stately pergola, large enough to be divided into three sections, one in the middle for the orchestra, one for the chaperones, and one for the dancers. A second retreat for the dancers was the trophy room, which had been fitted up with pieces of fraternity furniture, and besides being decorated with pennants and banners was lit with handsome electroliers. To carry out the Japanese effect, baskets of chrysanthemums were hung in the arches of the pavilion and placed on tables in the trophy room, and the programs were made of yellow silk decorated in purple.

The men of the Obelisk Society served punch from several parts of the room, thus doing away with the usual crowding; and ice cream and cakes were served after the tenth dance by the same men.

It is impossible in a bare description to give the effect of the lilac-covered walls and ceiling and the myriads of lights that entirely disguised the familiar features of the Gymnasium, but it is certain that those who witnessed it will remember the Junior Prom of the Class of 1916 as the most elegant and tasteful production of the sort that could be devised.

The Theta Tea

THE weather was bad and many students were working for the Prom on Washington's Birthday, but in spite of all this a large number of guests gathered at the annual reception given by Alpha Iota of Kappa Alpha Theta. It was held this year at the home of Miss Edith Row, and the girls, as usual, wore colonial costumes. The reception room was decorated in pink, and here coffee and sandwiches were served, while in the dining room, where the guests were entertained with dainty cakes, ices and candies, the table was ornate with jonquils and yellow candlesticks. In the receiving line were: Miss Martha McCaulley, Mrs. F. A. Hall, Mrs. J. B. Wilson, Miss Winona Petring and Miss Jeanette Jennings.

The tea was followed by an informal dance in the evening.

The Bonfire

THE Annual Bonfire was held this year on the night of February first, just after the examinations, but not, we are informed by "Student Life," because of them. Novel features were fireworks, furnished by the Architects, and a speech by Sam DeKins. Obelisk, as usual, furnished the wood and constructed the pyre, and Pralma took charge of the entertainment. Mud was an extensive feature on the program; that was furnished free of charge.

The parade filed past McMillan Hall to show off the fireworks, and then the fire was lighted and the faculty member was burned. Sausages and rolls constituted the solid part of the refreshments.

The A. A. Smoker

THE annual smoker of the Athletic Association was held in Francis Gymnasium on March eighteenth. About three hundred and fifty men were present, and this fact, together with the enthusiasm displayed and the awakening in athletics this last year, called forth the remarks of the older men and reminiscences of other times when athletic smokers were not so interesting. A considerable number of speakers, besides music from the Mandolin Club and the usual athletic numbers, made up the program. The names of the newly-elected officers were then announced, and forty-two men were presented with W's.

Clais

A FRESHMAN Honorary Society has been organized (March twenty-sixth) among the women of the University, under the name Clais. Its work among the girls will be parallel to the work of Obelisk among the men, its avowed purpose being to arouse interest among the Freshmen girls in all sorts of University activities, including athletics, and to advise and otherwise assist the incoming Freshmen, from whom its succeeding members will be chosen. The plan was fostered and approved by Miss McCaulley, who believes that there is a need for such a society at Washington. The membership is limited to twelve, and the charter members (Class of 1918, Active 1915) are: Elizabeth Stockton, Emily Dauernheim, Margaretta Roth, Jessamine Price, Georgia Lee Berkley, Helen Johnston, Sylvia Corley, Mildred Phelps, Carrie Clifton, Mary Callahan, Gertrude Kipp and Mae Levy.

The Engineers' Pageant

THE Engineers'. Pageant, which was held for the first time last year, was held again this year on the first of April. As before, the sacred beaver was borne around the campus and the corpse of Casey Jones arose from the dead to admonish the Engineers and the Faculty.

The procession started from Cupples II at one o'clock and wound around the Quad. The Sophomore Engineers meanwhile enacted the European War to the delight of the spectators. After the war was over the procession passed review before the front steps of University Hall, and then stopped while the ceremony was held. It may be remarked, in a friendly spirit, that the ritual was much shorter and less imposing than that of last year, and it is to be regretted that the conferring of the orders of the Beaver was omitted. Nothing, however, could have been added to the parade. Among the floats were: the Junior C. E.s' steam shovel, the hit of the day; two bridges by the Senior C. E.s; the electric locomotive of the Junior E. E.s; a stationary steam engine by the Junior M. E.s; the Chem. E.s' miracle table, which was used for the ritual rather than as a float; the Sophomores' miracle mill; and the remarkable battleship of the Freshmen, the largest float of them all. Smaller floats, if we may be permitted the use of the term, were: a steam ditcher, a Krupp gun, a slide rule, a graduate, and the Architects' ambulance, drawn by their goat; other features of the parade were the Engineers' Band, the procession of Alchemists, the mounted police, the army, and a moving picture company. After the ceremonies a considerable portion of the parade went to the campus of Smith Academy.

During the ceremonies William Holland read a paper on the Faculty. Kenneth Coggeshall, the High Priest, delivered the invocation to Casey Jones, who, after some stunts and another oration by the Lord High Magician, sat up in his coffin and spoke to the Engineers and the members of the Faculty who were present.

The Engineers' Banquet

OVER a hundred students and alumni attended the Engineers' Annual Banquet, held at the American Hotel Annex on the evening of April first, just after the Pageant. Dean Langsdorf was toastmaster, introducing as guests of the evening Messrs. W. E. Rolfe, F. T. Cutts and A. P. Gruensfelder. Songs by Summersby and Siroky and recitations by Hughes were included in the program. When the regular program was concluded the crowd gathered around the piano and sang, all joining in several songs by the Dean, among which was a new Alma Mater song which the Hatchet Board would like to have laid hold of.

JOB 41—The arrow cannot make him flee.—NORTON MONTEITH.

The Washington University Union

TALK of organizing a Union at Washington similar to that at Michigan has been going on all year, and several tentative dates were set for the Union Banquet, which was to be the occasion of its launching, and which took place on the tenth of April. The organizers of the movement arranged things so that the price of the dinner included enough to run the Union the rest of the year, so that all who attended the Banquet automatically became members of the Union during its first year.

The characteristics of the organization which came into being that evening are somewhat as follows: All men who have been or are connected with Washington University as students or officers of instruction or government may become members upon the payment of the annual dues, which amount to one dollar. It is governed by a board of twenty-one, who will elect the officers from among themselves, and who this year are as follows: Faculty, Prof. Williams, Mr. Von Schlegel, Dr. Bartlett, Prof. McCourt, Prof. Allen, Dr. Edmunds, and Dr. Harry Schlueter; students, George Metcalfe, S. McCormack, N. McCormack, Harry Rhodes, Kennedy, Badgely, and Graf; former students, Dr. Lund, Dr. Terhellen, Messrs. Richard Miller, John Calhoun, Walter Krause, Henry Hall, and A. P. Gruensfelder. The purpose of the Union is the cultivation of social fellowship, and the promotion of the best interests of the University. A swimming pool first and then a club house are its present aims.

The only acts of the Union so far are the Banquet and the lease of two rooms in the Gymnasium. The program at the Banquet included selections by the Orchestra, the Glee Club and the Mandolin Club, a vocal solo by Cornelius Reed, and an oriental dance by Daniel Bartlett. Mr. Rolfe called the business meeting to order, and took up the work of organizing the Union. Dr. McCourt, Mr. Rolfe, and Mr. Brookings spoke on the Union, and Dean Langsdorf submitted a constitution, which was at once accepted. It is estimated that over four hundred and fifty were enrolled through their presence at the Banquet as members.

The Union has all our best wishes, and with the start it has it should be successful. It is perhaps to be expected that a similar organization will soon spring up among the women of the University, for this Union took absolutely no cognizance of the fact that this University is co-educational.

JOB 32—I will also show mine opinion, for I am full of words.—FANNY CUSHING.

Alumni Notes

THE annual business meeting of the Washington University Alumni Association was held at the Engineers' Club. There was an unusually good attendance, and for the first time a number of the alumnae were present. The question of enlarging the scope of the Association was discussed, and it was voted to refer the following motion to the Association at large: "That every graduate of every degree-giving department of Washington University shall, upon payment of the annual dues, automatically become a member of the Alumni Association." The passage of this motion, and another, reducing the dues to a dollar a year, was announced at the annual Alumni Banquet, held later at the American Annex.

The annual Alumni Luncheon, which was omitted in 1913, was held in the Art School immediately after the 1914 Commencement Exercises. On January 29 and 30, and February 6, 1915, the Alumni of Thyrsus gave a successful performance of A. W. Pinero's "Dandy Dick," in the hope that they would establish a custom and that the Alumni Play would become an annual event.

The officers of the Alumni Association for the year 1915 are: William E. Rolfe, '95, President; William R. Vickroy, '83, first Vice-President; Rhodes E. Cave, '97, second Vice-President; Otto Harting, '01, Treasurer; Alexander Skinker, '05, Secretary; Walter C. Bryan, '07, Corresponding Secretary.

The Alumni Association regrets the loss of several valued members during the past year. They are:

Frederick William Potthoff, '88, principal of the Shepard School in St. Louis, died April 3, 1914.

Newton Richards Wilson, '79, died in St. Louis on June 23. He enjoyed a considerable reputation as a mining engineer and expert throughout the Southwest and Mexico, where he lived for a number of years. At the time of his death he was engaged in the lumber business in Beaumont, Texas.

William Schuyler, '74 (M. A. '77), principal of the McKinley High School in St. Louis, died July 7. Mr. Schuyler was not only recognized as one of the foremost educators in St. Louis, but was known throughout the country for his novels, critical essays, and musical compositions.

Martin Harvard Post, M.D., '72, died September 1. Dr. Post, who received his doctor's degree from the St. Louis Medical College in 1874, was one of the leading oculists of St. Louis.

The death of Charles Branch, '62, on January 6, 1915, deprived the Association of one of its oldest members. Mr. Branch's class was the first graduated from the University. Mr. Branch had long been engaged in the insurance business.

William S. Eames, '78, of the firm of Eames and Young, Architects, died March 5. Mr. Eames enjoyed national recognition in his profession, being the designer of many notable buildings in St. Louis and elsewhere, and holding the office of president of the American Institute of Architects.

Edgar Ferdinand Zachritz, Law '10, died March 29. Mr. Zachritz was associated with his father in the firm of Zachritz and Zachritz, Attorneys.

ART SCHOOL CALENDAR

Oct. 28 The Art Students' Association initiated about 30 new members, and all those who stood the test were rewarded with some feed.

Nov. 27 Opened the Annual Bazaar, which was held in the Lecture Hall of the Art School, and all wise people bought their Christmas presents.

Dec. 1 Committee meetings became an every day occurrence after the Ball was decided upon.

Jan. 7-8 3 A. M. was the date of the Arabian Nights Ball, which created so much talk around town. Yes, and the Art School in the bottom land did it.

Jan. 8 Two students reported at school. I wonder why? It took some two weeks to limber up.

Mar. 1 The Boys' Life Class had a great feast, and the girls didn't know a thing about it. Everything from coffee and to "you know."

Mar. 15 "Know all ye People, Hereafter on March 15 the Girls' Life Class shall honor Saint Michael's Day by one good feast." That's the excuse the girls have for giving their feed.

GOOD PRINTING
YOUR BEST SALESMAN

Your advertising and printed matter is a better salesman than any man in your employ—IF it is attractive, refined and forceful enough to obtain notice.

There will be no IF to overcome—if you take advantage of our Service Department. It matters not what kind of a job you require, we can give you perfect satisfaction.

Our experts will write your copy, choose the correct type faces and give you the right combination of paper and ink. In other words we are offering you —and our prices are not prohibitive. We make but a small charge for preparing copy. We have one ingredient that is mixed with all our inks—Grey Matter. Let us use some of this on your next job of printing.

PRINTING SERVICE

Write us your needs—we will do the rest. We can handle your work just as easily if you are in New York as though you were in St. Louis. One of our largest customers is in Baltimore, Md.—We have many others scattered throughout the country.

"A WORLD OFFERS HOMAGE TO THEE"

Like the flag of this Nation, you will find the output of our factory meeting with praise and popularity all over the universe.

When we selected the name COLUMBIA for our product, we established a standard that represented the "top-notch" quality, and it has always been and always will be our constant aim to maintain this degree of excellence.

IDEAL COLUMBIA CHAIR
COLUMBIA ELECTRIC ENGINE
COLUMBIA ELECTRIC LATHE
COLUMBIA AIR COMPRESSOR UNIT

represent equipment of the highest standard. The material, workmanship, adaptability and finish of these articles have brought them world-wide popularity, evidenced by their universal use.
There will be frequent opportunities presented for seeing the above product demonstrated, and we trust that everyone will avail himself of the same.

We shall be pleased to send our catalog upon request.

They are issued for a specified term—ten, fifteen or twenty years. The sum insured is payable to the holder of the policy if he survive the selected term. If death occur prior thereto the insurance is payable to the beneficiary. The plan thus combines protection for the insured as well as for his family, since the policy is payable whether the insured lives to the end of the term selected or dies during the period.
